It ain't gonna be easy.

It's the 100th year of the 17th Amendment. The amendment is a victory for democracy, a victory for the people. It is a victory for the people to have a voice in who represents them in Congress. It is a victory for the people to have a voice in who represents them in the Senate.

The 17th Amendment was ratified on March 30, 1913. It provided for a direct election of senators, which had previously been chosen by state legislatures. This amendment was a result of the women's suffrage movement and the efforts of many women and men who fought for voting rights.

The 17th Amendment is an important part of the U.S. Constitution. It is a reminder of the importance of democracy and the need for all citizens to participate in the political process. It is a reminder of the need for a government that is accountable to the people.

U Thant's Perfidy

It is the 50th anniversary of the assassination of U Thant, the former United Nations secretary-general. U Thant was a key figure in international affairs, particularly during the Cold War.
