Big Yule Parade Welcomes Santa

The largest parade in Carthage history with floats and live bands included will ring in the New Year Friday at 8:30 p.m., starting at the Carthage High School. The parade will be a major event for the entire community.

Citizens of all ages are invited to attend and participate in the parade. The route will begin at the City Hall on Main Street and proceed down Main Street, past the Carthage High School, onto White Oak Street, and back to the City Hall.

The parade will feature live music from local bands and floats decorated with festive themes. Local businesses and organizations will also have floats in the parade, representing their contributions to the community.

The Yule Parade is a great opportunity for families to come together and enjoy the holiday spirit. So mark your calendars and join in the fun this Friday night!

Last Word is Best

It appears that the State Board of Education's request that the district publish and approve a series of controversial new textbooks should have been rejected. The district is said to have spent about $50 million on new textbooks, but most of the books may not suit the last word on the matter.

Some of the persons who made detailed examinations of several of the new texts and said they were unsound and unsuitable found the books offensive and misleading. They claimed the books have not been revised or corrected and that the last word on the matter may not suit them.

Justice, a leading newspaper in the state, has already been warned that its editors may be called to the city and that the last word on the matter may not suit the editors.

By James Smith

The Lighter Side

While President Nixon's today wage and price freezes may be well intentioned, it is filled with loopholes. Through loopholes called "holiday", individuals who do not work are allowed to receive the same benefits of the freeze. For example, in a family of four, the country's economic life may be 10 times as much as the freeze of the last word on the matter.

The type of the party is that of the legislative and executive branch of government who intended it or support it have been recent recipients of substantial salary increases.

Federal legislators and the President of the United States in effect have been guilty of defiling the form of inflating by legislating, approving, and accepting pay raises.

And the legislative process in state governments have been used as a vehicle for state legislators to raise their own salaries.

During the past decade the salaries of legislators in California, for example, increased from $8,000 per year to $12,000 per year. In 1970, California voters gave legislators a $12,000 per year raise and at the same time approved a proposition that legislators could set their own salaries.

Unsatisfied with the generous increase of $12,000 they immediately voted themselves an additional $200 per month raise to go into effect in January 1971. December legislators found themselves higher daily expenses allowances.

Seeing that the money tree had fruit hanging, they took it again in a bold and heartless manner. Legislators make no further pay raises.

What California's conservative governor did not couple legislative protect the public from legislation? Nothing. While Pay raises were met with jeering in Sacramento, when the University of California and State College professors and all other university employees in the state received pay raises, the 1971 legislature was sharply trim.

Seeing that the money tree had fruit hanging, they took it again in a bold and heartless manner. Legislators make no further pay raises.

For some reason or other the story is the same. In the "Last Word is Best" column, they are saying the same thing. In the "Lighter Side" column, they are saying the same thing. In the "Grassroots Opinion" column, they are saying the same thing.

The Currituck News

Grassroots Opinion

REFUGIO, TEXAS, FEELS that its economy has been in a downward spiral for some time, and the new federal decision to close the Texas City nuclear power plant is only the latest blow in what has been a long series of setbacks. This is a chronic problem. The city of Refugio has been trying to diversify its economy for years, but it is still struggling to find a way to sustain itself. The decision to close the nuclear power plant is a blow to the city's economic prospects, and it may have serious consequences for the local community.

The state of Texas has announced that it plans to close the Texas City nuclear power plant, which has been in operation since 1973. The plant is located in Refugio County, which is one of the poorest counties in Texas. The plant has been a source of employment for many local residents, and its closure will have a significant impact on the community.

The closure of the plant will result in the loss of hundreds of jobs, including those of plant workers, maintenance workers, and administrative staff. It will also have an impact on the local economy, as the plant has been a major contributor to the county's tax base.

The city of Refugio and the county of Refugio have been working to find ways to diversify the local economy, but the closure of the nuclear power plant will make it even more challenging to find new sources of income for the community.

The city has been working with various organizations to explore new economic opportunities, but the closure of the plant will make it more difficult to attract new businesses to the area.

The closure of the plant is not unexpected, as the Texas Public Utility Commission has been reviewing the plant's operations for several years. The commission has found that the plant is not economically viable and has recommended that it be closed.

The city of Refugio is planning to appeal the closure decision, but it is unlikely that the appeal will be successful. The plant is owned by the Texas Nuclear Power Company, and it is not clear whether the company will appeal the decision.

The closure of the plant will have a significant impact on the community, and it will be a challenge for the city and county to find ways to address the economic consequences of the closure. The city has already started to explore new economic opportunities, but it will be a long and difficult process to find ways to sustain the community in the absence of the nuclear power plant.

Bentsen Seeks Tax Credit For Elderly

Planting Requires Care

The irregular annual examination of the records of the City of Carthage, Texas, was made by the Texas Department of Public Assistance, as of December 30, 1973. The actual number of records was estimated to be 8,000. Major changes were noted at 3 & 85.

Bentsen was born in 1929 in Texas, and is a former state representative. He has been involved in various state and local issues, including education, healthcare, and economic development. He has been a strong supporter of the elderly and their needs, advocating for tax credits and other forms of assistance. His work in these areas has been recognized and praised by his constituents and colleagues.

GALLOWAY WEEKEND VISITING

Eveacje for highway 90 between San Antonio and Austin began last month. This year, however, there is yet another problem. Railroad workers have begun to protest over new exhaust laws for trains. The laws state that trains must now use a new type of coal which contains less sulfur. Many workers claim that this coal is too hot to handle and has made the work more dangerous. In addition, the new coal has caused a decrease in production. The railroad company has refused to change to the old coal, saying that it is too expensive. In response, the workers have begun to strike, causing a major disruption in rail traffic. On the other hand, the government has decided to support the railroad workers, hoping to reduce the number of accidents caused by the new coal. This decision has led to the railroad company to investigate the possibility of using a new type of coal that is both safer and less expensive. As a result, the railroad workers have called off their strike and the government has also agreed to support the railroad company in this matter.
