Tax Deficit Cited

By County Auditor

Robert B. Brown, Carthage, a member of the Panola County Board of Commissioners, announced that the county is facing a $100,000 deficit this year. The deficit is due to a number of factors, including a decrease in property values and increased expenses. The county auditor's report, which was released last week, showed that the county's budget is balanced, but the deficit is still a concern. Mr. Brown said that the county will have to make some difficult decisions in order to address the deficit. He added that the county is looking into ways to increase its revenue, such as by increasing property taxes.
