Craig Inn: A Historic Site

Community members gather at the Craig Inn, located in Panola County, Texas, to celebrate its rich history. The inn, which dates back to the late 1800s, has been a significant landmark in the area for decades. It was originally a stagecoach stop and later served as a popular meeting place for locals.

The inn features a charming exterior with wooden shutters and a porch that offers a view of the surrounding countryside. Inside, visitors can explore period furnishings and learn about the inn's past through exhibits and guided tours.

Activities include picnicking, historical reenactments, and storytelling sessions. The inn also hosts special events throughout the year, such as art shows and music festivals.

Despite being a historical landmark, the Craig Inn is still operational. It serves as a bed and breakfast and a venue for events, offering a glimpse into the past while providing a comfortable setting for modern-day visitors.

For more information on the Craig Inn, visit their official website or contact the local tourism office. The inn is open to the public during certain hours and has accommodations available for overnight stays.

Inflation: Public Enemy No. 1

Between the Lines

By Eric Nunez

The economy is in a critical state, with inflation rates soaring and the cost of living rising. This is due to the ongoing issue of the "elephant in the room," which is the increasing demand for goods and services, coupled with the limited supply. The result is a nationwide economic crisis that affects everyone. Everyone from the working class to the middle class and even the wealthy are feeling the pinch. The government is trying to control inflation by increasing interest rates, but it is having only a limited effect. The problem is complex and requires a comprehensive solution. The solution should include a mix of policies to reduce demand, increase supply, and stabilize prices. The government should also work with businesses to increase productivity and reduce costs. Ultimately, the solution to inflation is a combination of macroeconomic policies and microeconomic actions.

When Moral Values Are Disregarded

Moral values are not just abstract concepts; they influence our daily lives. Disregarding moral values can lead to negative consequences. The story of the train engineer and the little boy illustrates this point.

WATCHDOG FOR THE TAXPAYERS

- In 1994, the Nixon Administration attempted to sell off the unproductive Penn Central Railroad. Wright Patman blocked the move and saved the taxpayers at least $2 billion dollars.
- In 1970 and 1971, Wright Patman ordered an investigation of fraud and illegal practices involving the FHA's 203 and 205 housing programs. His efforts ended these frauds, brought better management to the Federal housing programs, and saved the taxpayers $50 million dollars.
- In 1966, Wright Patman led the fight to tax and regulate the wealthy in privately-owned foundations, resulting in an additional $30 million a year in tax revenues.
- In 1968, Wright Patman sponsored legislation to establish a Cost Accounting Standards Board to provide a uniform method of checking of defense contracts. These provisions brought new efficiencies and have prevented waste in our defense programs.
- In 1972, Wright Patman blocked an attempt to push through 22 special interest tax bills. His fight against these attempted extravagances saved the taxpayer hundreds of millions of dollars.
- This year, Wright Patman gained passage of a bill to terminate the House of Representatives of Congress requiring a General Accounting Office audit of the $100 billion dollar Federal Reserve System—the first change in the use of the taxpayers' funds by this huge agency.

/watchdog: a Watchdog's duty is to protect the public from abuses and inefficiencies in government. It is a role similar to that of a lawyer who investigates and exposes malfeasance. In the context of the Nixon Administration, it is likely that the Watchdog role was played by individuals or groups who advocated against certain policies or actions. The Watchdog's efforts in this case were aimed at protecting taxpayers from losses due to the sale of the Penn Central Railroad and the fraud in the FHA's housing programs. These actions demonstrate the importance of vigilance and the role of watchdogs in ensuring public interest and accountability.
