Homestead Exemption Election Likely

County Judge Frank Rankin decided Monday morning he would call a special election to be held March 29 to allow voters to decide whether the county should adopt the homestead exemption. A homestead exemption would allow homeowners to exclude a certain amount of the value of their homes from property taxes.

The special election would be held on the same day the Routt County county officers are to be elected. The Routt County Commissioners will hold their regular meeting Monday evening and are scheduled to consider a request by the Routt County Clerk to have the election held on the same day.
