The bill of bugles and chiffon of Saturday morning's Parade was part of the Bicentennial celebration held yesterday in the downtown area of Carthage. The patriotic pageantry symbolized the beginning of the nation's bicentennial year.

Many thousands attended the celebrations held in the downtown area over the weekend in celebration of the 200th birthday of the United States. The festivities included a parade, a fireworks display, and other events.

Bicentennial celebrations were held across the country, reflecting the national pride and enthusiasm for the occasion. The celebration marked two centuries of American independence and the founding of the nation.

The holiday weekend was marked by increased patriotism and civic pride, as people came together to honor the country's history and celebrate its achievements.
