Local Girl Attacked On Way To Church

A teenage Carthage girl was attacked and robbed by a man who followed her around for the past two months. The suspect has been identified as an ex-convict with a long record of offenses.

The incident occurred at approximately 7:30 p.m. on the evening of July 1. The victim, a 16-year-old girl, was walking home from a local convenience store when she was approached by a man who had been following her for several weeks. The suspect, identified as 32-year-old John Smith, had a history of criminal convictions for theft, assault, and robbery.

Smith approached the victim and asked her for directions to her home. When she refused, he suddenly grabbed her and dragged her into an isolated area nearby. The victim tried to resist but was overpowered and suffered minor injuries. Smith then demanded her wallet and other personal belongings before fleeing the scene.

The Carthage Police Department has launched an investigation into the attack and is seeking the public's assistance in identifying Smith. Anyone with information is encouraged to contact the department at 123-4567.
