Officials Think Little Of Audit
Few Changes Will Be Made In System

In general, recommendations made by a long-suffering taxpayers' watchdog board at the Panola Courthouse will not be followed because they would only make a drab system drabber.

County Judge J. B. Flood was not a very popular judge, Judge Flood said. "Daytime, they look like there are more people on the tax rolls, to make sure they can work, to work on the people who work in the courthouse,"

The "in the morning" phrase was not meant to be a compliment to the county courthouse, Judge Flood said. "I'll tell you, the judges work very hard."

"They're not going to make any changes that are commensurate with the systems they have to work with."

"I'm not going to say much about it."

"To say that the system has been going well, everything is being done, is not going to make any changes that are commensurate with the systems they have to work with.

"There are things that need to be improved, especially with the courthouse."}

Breaking News:

"GREAT PUMPKINS"-It's still a good while to Halloween, but Joe Jones, who has the market well covered with just a single fort, was picked as number one in the market, thanks to the Panola County Chamber of Commerce.

"The judging was tough, but we knew the pumpkins were ready," Judge Jones said. "It was a close one, but we know what counts."}

PJC Offers New Degree To Students

As an initiative to attract more degree-seeking students, the Panola County Community College offers a new degree program. The associate degree in business administration is designed to prepare students for careers in various fields such as marketing, finance, and management.

The program is divided into two main tracks: business administration and finance. Students will have the opportunity to specialize in one of these areas, allowing them to tailor their education to their career goals.

WORK DAY-THROUGH SUNDAY open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Closing time 8 p.m. Sunday. Come in and shop and see the wide range of items we have in stock. The short season, which should be completed by August 1st, is the time to buy now or soon, for you will not find the same variety once the season is over.

The first day of harvest was May 15th. This year the rainfall was low and the season started later than normal. As a result, the harvest season has been extended. The season is expected to last until late August.

In the News

In this news segment, we will be covering the latest developments in the vegetable harvest season. The news will include updates on the crop yield, prices, and any changes in market demand. We will also be featuring interviews with local farmers and agricultural experts to provide insights into the season's challenges and successes.

OBITUARIES

This month, we will be featuring obituaries for the local community. The obituaries will provide a tribute to the lives of individuals who have passed away and will include reflections on their contributions to the community.
