Housing Funds Might Reach $350,000 Here
Local Program Could Continue For Years

County Commissioners approved a resolution this week that will allow the County to be the lead agency in a Housing Fund program which will provide financial assistance to local governments in the form of grants.

The resolution, which authorizes County Commissioners to enter into a five-year agreement with the Texas Housing Finance Corp., sets a ceiling of $350,000 for the program. The ceiling may be increased by a factor of ten to accommodate future growth.

The program will provide grants to local governments for the development of affordable housing projects. The funds will be used to finance the construction, purchase, or rehabilitation of housing units for low- and moderate-income households.

Board Chairman Bruce Weber, who is also a member of the County's Housing Authority, said the program will be an important tool for attracting new businesses to the area and retaining existing ones.

"This program will help us attract new businesses and keep our current ones," Weber said. "It will help us create a more diverse and strong economy." Weber also emphasized the need for affordable housing in the area, saying that many young professionals and families are being priced out of the market, which could negatively impact the local economy.

The Housing Authority will be responsible for administering the program. The Authority will be seeking funding from state and federal sources to cover the cost of the program.

The Board of Directors will meet in January to discuss the next steps in the program, which will likely include setting up a local committee to oversee the program's implementation.

County Commissioner Mike Miller, who is also a member of the County's Housing Authority, said he is excited about the program and is looking forward to seeing it implemented.

"I'm really excited about this program," Miller said. "It's a great opportunity to help our community and create a more diverse and strong economy." Miller also emphasized the need for affordable housing in the area, saying that many young professionals and families are being priced out of the market, which could negatively impact the local economy.

Nurses Week

There is a price of admission to the world of nursing that nurses willingly receive; it is the fact of being the first and often the last friend one has as a nurse.

Despite the recognition of the outstanding services to human welfare that nurses perform, the profession is still frequently neglected by the public. Nurses Week was established by the ANA to bring the nurses into the public eye.

According to the ANA, nurses provide the initial health care services for the majority of patients who seek medical assistance. They are the first to encounter the patient and are often the last to move him on his way. Nurses are often the first to receive the patient's complaints and are often the last to be informed if the patient's condition changes.

It is important to recognize that nurses are more than just a group of people who work in hospitals. They are also the first line of defense against disease and illness. Nurses are trained in the art of caring for others and are well equipped to handle the emotional needs of patients.

The next time you have a question about medical care, remember that it is a nurse who will answer it. The nurses are there to help you and to make you feel comfortable.

SENSING THE NEWS

Sabotaging Presses

Nurses week has entered its official start with the ANA 1978 program. The theme for this year is "In The News, You Can". The theme is designed to highlight the role of nurses in the health care delivery system.

About Taxes

The tax law changes that took effect this year will affect everyone. There are new deductions, changes in the brackets, and other changes that will impact your taxes.

Patty’s Case

The public has been told that a rigorous selection process is used to determine who is admitted to the hospital. This is true, but the process is not perfect. There are some patients who are admitted to the hospital, but they are not suitable for the type of care they require.

Devilish Devices

A common complaint among nurses is that the devices used in hospitals are often too complicated. Nurses have complained that the devices are not user-friendly, and that they are difficult to use.

Pipeline expansion

The Railroad Commission's recent decision to increase the price of gas and oil produced in Texas by 10 percent will have a substantial impact on the industry, according to industry leaders. The increase will become effective

January 1, 1975.

The commission's decision was based on a study of the cost of production and the need to ensure a sufficient supply of gas and oil for the future.

Industry leaders said the increase is necessary to maintain the viability of the industry and to ensure a consistent supply of gas and oil for consumers.

The increase will affect production costs for oil and gas companies, and the industry has faced significant challenges in recent years due to fluctuations in fuel prices.

The increase will help offset some of the costs associated with producing and transporting gas and oil, while also providing funds for infrastructure and research and development.

The decision was met with mixed reactions from various corporations and individuals, who expressed concern about the impact on consumers and the overall economy.

Despite these concerns, industry leaders remained optimistic about the future of the industry and its ability to adapt to changing market circumstances.

Bankers back up

Depository institutions have been actively involved in supporting the industry, providing financing and investment opportunities for companies to expand and innovate.

The increase in the price of gas and oil is a step in the right direction for ensuring the sustainability of the industry, according to industry leaders.

Total manufactured output increased by 10 percent during the same period, with manufacturing accounting for 51 percent of total manufacturing output.

The number of employees employed by manufacturing companies increased by 22 percent, with 1.7 million employees now working in the manufacturing sector.

The number of manufacturing companies also increased, with 8,262 companies now operating in the sector.

The growth in employment and companies is a positive development for the overall economy, according to industry

leaders.

However, industry leaders also acknowledged the challenges that remain.

The industry faces ongoing challenges, including the need for continued investment in technology and infrastructure to remain competitive.

Despite these challenges,

industry leaders remain optimistic about the future, believing that the industry will continue to grow and innovate as it adapts to changing market conditions.
