Voting Rights Act Will Prove Costly

The Voting Rights Act is going to cost Panola County residents money and local businesses money as a result of court rulings. The act is designed to make it easier for people to vote, but it has also resulted in increased funding for electoral purposes.

The act has been a boon to local businesses as they have seen increased foot traffic as more people have become eligible to vote. The act has also led to increased funding for election-related expenses, such as poll worker training and materials.

However, the act has come at a cost to local residents. The increased funding has resulted in higher property taxes, as the costs of running elections are passed on to taxpayers.

Despite these challenges, the act remains a valuable tool in ensuring that all eligible voters have the opportunity to participate in the electoral process.

Press Freedom Jeopardized

The Lines

By Jim Malone

This is the last column I've written before Christmas, so let's look at the work we've done on the editorial page over the past three months or so. Last week, we wrote about Mexico, and a few weeks earlier, we wrote about health care reform. This week, we're going to write about freedom of the press.

All told, 16 million Americans have been arrested since the September 11 attacks. When you combine that number with the number of people already in jail, you get about 20 million Americans who are being held in prison or jail at any given time. That's about one out of every 20 Americans. This is a staggering number. And it's not just about the people who are being held. It's about the way that the war on terrorism is being fought.

The whole point of the war on terrorism is to prevent more attacks. But the way that the war is being fought is not preventing more attacks. It is creating more. The more people we lock up, the more likely it is that we'll lock up the wrong people. And the more people we lock up, the more likely it is that we'll lock up people who are innocent.

This is a problem that we need to fix. It's not just a problem for Mexico. It's a problem for all of us. It's a problem for all of us who value freedom. It's a problem for all of us who value democracy. It's a problem for all of us who value justice. And it's a problem for all of us who value peace.

So, let's not forget about freedom of the press. Let's remember that it's not just about the people who are arrested. It's about the way that we're fighting the war on terrorism. It's about the way that we're treating our fellow citizens. And it's about the way that we're treating the world.

For 1976-77 Year

School Calendar Adopted

The Board of Trustees of Panola Junior College met Monday evening at 7 p.m. and adopted the calendar for the 1976-77 school year. The calendar, according to Dr. E. D. Hill, superintendent, is essentially the same as previous years except for a slight change in the first week of classes which will begin on August 29 instead of August 28.

Another decision that will affect all students is the board of trustees' decision to place more emphasis on providing counseling services for students. Dr. Hill explained that this is being done in response to student demands for increased personal development opportunities and that the counseling services will be available to all students taking courses at the college.
