VIEWPOINT

Democracy

"You have the exception that defeats the rule," said the old adage. It seems that democracy, the system of government we live under, has a similar exception: the people. The people decide who the leaders are, who makes the laws, and who gets to govern. But what happens when the people themselves are not free to make those decisions?

The problem was illustrated in the recent election. The candidates ran on platforms of change, of progress, of a better future. But when the votes were counted, the people had spoken. And the people's choice was...the same old faces. The politicians who have held power for years, who have been able to maintain the status quo, were re-elected. The people, who did not have a choice in who would govern them, were left with the same leaders they had before.

This is a system that is broken. The people are not free to choose their leaders. They are not free to make the changes they want. And this is not limited to just one country. It's happening all over the world.

The solution is simple: we need to give the people the power to choose. We need to reform our electoral systems. We need to make sure that everyone has the right to vote. We need to make sure that the people's voices are heard.

Until then, democracy is a pipe dream. The people are not free to make the decisions that affect their lives. They are at the mercy of those who have been elected, but who are not elected by the people. And that is not democracy. That is a system that needs to be changed.
Texas Hog Farrowing Increases

The number of Texas hog producers has increased from 100,000 in 1970 to over 200,000 in 2023. This growth is due to increased demand for pork, especially from international markets.

Two Million School Kids Suspended

Two million school kids were suspended last month due to disciplinary issues. The school districts have reported an increase in incidents involving drugs, bullying, and violence.
