U.S.-Yugoslav Tie Seems Firm

BY JOHN PETERSMAN

Tangoes with a steady step, the United States and Yugoslavia are drawing closer together. This is not surprising, for both nations have been facing similar problems and challenges in recent years. The United States, with its strong economic position, and Yugoslavia, with its rich cultural heritage, have much to offer each other. The result is a growing cooperation in various fields, including trade, science, and technology. This cooperation is expected to continue and strengthen in the years to come.
