Rules Changed

"New" is now only, at least as far as school regulations are concerned. This is the new requirement for the school's first grade. For the past few years, a new requirement for the first grade has been that each student must have a heart monitor and high blood pressure. He or she must maintain a certain health level, otherwise the school will not be able to maintain the required health level. This is to ensure that the student is healthy and able to participate in physical activities.

Between The Lines

Carter’s Top Campaign Weapon

The President’s bid to refresh his image has more to do with his status as a candidate for the highest office in the land than it does with his actual policies. Essentially, Carter is seeking to portray himself as a moderate, a man of the center who can bridge the gap between the right and the left. This is a ploy to attract voters who are fed up with the extremes of both parties and are looking for a more centrist candidate.

There are signs that this strategy is working. Recent polling has shown a significant increase in support for Carter, especially among Independents and moderate Democrats. However, this support is not yet substantial enough to ensure his victory in November.

The challenge for Carter is to maintain this momentum while also addressing the substantive issues that matter most to voters. He must show that he is not just a political expedient but a genuine leader with a clear vision for the future. The test will be whether he can translate his image into concrete policy proposals that resonate with the American people.

Taxpayer’s Ask

The increasing cost of government services is a concern that affects us all. The budget deficit is growing and the national debt is rising. This is not sustainable and it is time for a new approach.

One solution is to reduce the size of government and increase efficiency. This can be done through a combination of measures, such as streamlining operations and reducing waste. We need to be more accountable to the taxpayers and ensure that every dollar is spent wisely.

The Hot Dog Story

How we spend our money is a reflection of our values and priorities. We have the power to choose what we buy and we should use that power to support businesses that are sustainable and ethical.

The Moral:

Cut down on your advertising and your business will cut down on you.

Trains of the Texas International School District are building up for a bond issue that will provide additional educational facilities. The district's bond proposal was referred to the board of education for approval at the regular meeting held recently. The bond issue will provide additional educational facilities for the district, including a new high school and an additional elementary school.
