Tax Suits Filed Against BISD, County

Texas Utilities Generating Company has filed suit in district court last Friday morning, seeking an injunction against Peach County, Fort Bend County, and the City of Wharton, saying they have failed to pay rental due to the company on natural gas lines. The suit was filed as a result of action by the county and the city to transfer the gas company's T2000 line through the property to bring gas to the city.

The suit alleges that, in contrast to the agreement, the county and the city have failed to pay the agreed rental of $3,000 for the use of the T2000 line. The company is seeking a judgment requiring the defendants to pay the rental due and an injunction to prevent the transfer of the line. The suit also seeks attorney's fees and costs of the suit.

Tax Hike Forecast

Tenants in Carriage will get an extra tax this year. The City Commissioners enacted a tax hike last Thursday, increasing the property tax rate from 10 cents to 20 cents per $100 of valuation.

Thomas and White Friday evening, when an amendment to the tax increase was vetoed. The back-up amendment, which was defeated, would have increased the rate to 30 cents.

The new tax rate is expected to raise about $50,000 for the City. The increase will be used to fund various city services, including street and park improvements.

Rocky Remains Loyal To GOP

By Tom Smith

The death of President Harry S. Truman on December 26, 1972, marked the end of an era as well as the beginning of a new one. The death of a man who had served his country for many years, and who had been a symbol of strength and integrity, was a blow to the nation. However, the death of President Truman also marked the beginning of a new era in the world of politics. The death of President Truman was a moment of reflection for many Americans, who thought about the man who had served as President and the legacy that he had left behind.

The death of President Truman was also a moment of transition. The nation was entering a new era of uncertainty, as the Cold War drew to a close and the United States began to confront new challenges. In the years that followed, the nation would face a number of important decisions, and the outcome of these decisions would shape the course of American history for generations to come.

When President Truman was inaugurated in 1949, he was a symbol of hope and optimism. He had been a steadfast supporter of the Allied cause during World War II, and he had played a crucial role in helping to win the war. However, President Truman was also a man of vision, and he recognized the importance of maintaining a strong and stable economy in the years that followed. His decision to focus on economic recovery and to promote social welfare programs was a turning point in American history, and it helped to lay the foundation for the prosperous society that we know today.

The death of President Truman was a moment of mourning for all Americans, but it was also a moment of reflection. It was a moment when we thought about the man who had served as President and the legacy that he had left behind. It was a moment when we thought about the challenges that faced the nation in the years that followed, and we wondered what the future would hold. In the end, the death of President Truman was a moment of transition, a moment when we looked back on the past and forward to the future.
