Problem Areas Outlined
In City Planning Report

Streets and sewers for two key areas that need attention in Carthage, according to the new city manager's report, are to be prepared by the City Council for presentation to the community.

The report, which is a comprehensive evaluation of the city's development, was submitted by Mr. John Smith, the city manager, who was appointed last month by the City Council.

The report states that the two key areas are the downtown area and the new industrial park.

The downtown area needs improvements in the form of new streets and sewers, as well as updated lighting and pedestrian amenities.

The industrial park, on the other hand, needs new streets and sewers, as well as improved access and utilities.

The report recommends that the City Council consider funding these projects as part of the city's capital improvement plan.

Local Construction Takes Dip

Still Ahead Of Old Timers

The local construction industry has seen a dip in recent months, with several projects delayed due to weather conditions.

However, the city of Carthage is planning to move forward with several major projects in the near future.

The City Council has approved a $5 million bond issue to fund the construction of a new city hall and library.

The bond issue will be presented to the voters in the next election.

Taxes Flow Steadily

Into County Coffers

Taxes are flowing steadily into the county coffers, with the county expecting to collect over $10 million in property taxes this year.

The county treasurer, Mr. James Smith, stated that the county is on track to meet its budget goals for the fiscal year.

The county has been able to stay on track despite the economic downturn due to the steady flow of property taxes.
