Local Students To Participate

In Statewide Testing Program

Every third year all students in grades 1 through 8 are required to take a standardized test to be administered in May or June. This test is given at a statewide computerized location for students enrolled in the public school system.

"We will look at our students' scores as a way to measure our performance and determine if we are meeting the educational needs of our students," said Dr. Wayne Allen, superintendent of Education. These tests will be a valuable tool for assessing the educational progress of students.

"Our students will be able to participate in the statewide testing program, which will help us to identify specific areas to improve instruction," said Dr. Allen.

"We will not score our students' performance and compare it to those of other school districts. In fact, we will be using the state's test results to determine if our students are doing well or not," said Dr. Allen.

Political Pot Simmering

While the political climate in Texas is relatively calm, a few local issues have begun to stir. The debate over the proposed irrigation system in the county has sparked controversy among residents.

The proposed irrigation system would provide water for the local agriculture industry. However, some residents are concerned about the potential impact on the environment.

The debate has divided the community, with some residents supporting the project and others opposing it.

Banquet Ticket Sales Sluggish

The ticket sales for the upcoming banquet are lagging behind expectations. Only a few tickets have been purchased so far, and organizers are concerned about the event's success.

"We had hoped for a larger turnout," said the banquet committee chairman, "but so far, it's been slow. We need to get more people interested in attending.

This Week

The College Station High School band will perform at the district's annual festival on Saturday.mode of transportation. This information is expected to reach the State Department of Education in October or November.

"The information will be used to determine if the testing was successful in meeting the goals of the statewide testing program," said Dr. Allen.
