A special day

Today is a special day for Americans. It is the day when we celebrate the 4th of July, our country's birthday. The nation was founded on principles of freedom and democracy, and today we honor those values by remembering the sacrifices of those who fought for our freedom.

No free lunch

We often talk about the value of education, but do we really understand what that means? To me, education is not just about learning facts or memorizing information. It's about understanding the world around us and being able to make informed decisions.

SENSING THE NEWS

Americans losing can-do attitude

As the economy continues to struggle, many Americans are feeling discouraged. The can-do attitude that has been a hallmark of American culture is fading, and many people are feeling hopeless and disconnected.

Small grains can make money

Small grains, such as corn, wheat, and oats, are an important part of our economy and our food system. They provide a valuable source of income for farmers and a reliable source of food for consumers.

A new day in life

Grandparents can 'earn' respect

Grandparents often have a unique perspective on life and are well respected by their family. However, they can also face challenges and may feel like they are not valued for their wisdom and experience.

Watchwords

by Sally Powers

The Watchwords is a column that highlights the importance of education, especially in the context of reading and writing. The column encourages readers to develop their skills in these areas and to appreciate the value of learning.

A new perspective

We often think about life in a linear way, focusing on the past and the present. However, by looking at life from a new perspective, we can gain new insights and understandings.

You and the law

The law is a complex and ever-changing field. It's important to understand how the law affects our lives and how we can navigate it effectively.
