Gas wells in county outnumber others in East Texas area

By Carthage commissioners

Clean-up urged for unsightly lots

Carthage City Commissioners have voted to make the city more attractive to the residents and to the potential investors who might consider buying property in Carthage. The city's streets and sidewalks have been in need of repair and improvement, and the commissioners believe that the city's appearance can be improved by the installation of new streetlights and the repair of sidewalks. They have also expressed their concern about the unsightly lots and the need for a more attractive environment for the citizens of Carthage.

Increased defense spending warranted

The defense of the nation is a primary responsibility of the government. The increased defense spending has been justified by the escalating threat of international conflict. However, this increased spending can have negative implications for other areas of the budget. It is important to ensure that defense spending is balanced with other critical areas such as education, healthcare, and infrastructure. The government should carefully consider the long-term effects of increased defense spending and prioritize funding for essential services.

Paul Bremond and the Rabbit Railroad

The steel ribbons started at Houston and spread northward, slicing through the forested mountains of East Texas. Builder Paul Bremond called the line the Houston, East and West Texas Railroad.

Mindful of tangles and bumps, HE&WT passengers christened the route "the Rabbit Railroad." Some were less generous, calling it "Hell Either Way Takes."

Despite the detractors, Bremond's railroad was a dream come true for East Texans. Its wheels signaled the development of industry and commerce in the piney woods and ended the region's dependence on slow-moving riverboats and horse-drawn wagons.

The HE&WT might not have been built without Paul Bremond's determination and tenacity.

A bold entrepreneur in the American West, Bremond came to Galveston from New York in 1839 after losing a fortune in a financial panic two years earlier.

He opened an auction and carriage house at Galveston, but soon became interested in railroads. In 1873, fascinated by the opportunities of the great East Texas forests and Houston's need for lumber, Bremond secured a charter to build a line northward toward Shreveport.

As the line crept into the forestlands, dozens of sawmills and new towns sprouted beside the tracks. In 1882, when the line reached Angleton, Bremond kept his word that the route was scheduled to pass through Houston, the county seat. But the town's council turned the right-of-way crew into jail at a Saturday night celebration, and the HE&WT engineer, infuriated by the treatment of his men, ordered the crew to bypass Houston — resulting in the establishment of Lubbock seven miles to the west.

Bremond's line reached Shreveport in 1886, providing a vital link between the Gulf Coast and East Texas. East Texas was never quite the same.

The achievements of men like Paul Bremond will endure forever in East Texas, a lasting legacy to the unique heritage of the land and its people.

As a principal contributor to the East Texas economy, we at St. Regis want to be a part of that heritage.

We don't just work here. We live here.

Fast foods have small place in diet

The National Restaurant Association points out the importance of a balanced diet in the diets of Americans. The association says that fast foods should be used as a supplement to a balanced diet and not as a main part of it. A balanced diet includes a variety of foods that provide necessary nutrients such as proteins, vitamins, and minerals. Fast foods, on the other hand, are typically high in calories and low in these necessary nutrients. Therefore, it is important to include fast foods in one's diet in moderation.

Women employed in low paying jobs

The employment of women in low paying jobs is a common issue in today's society. Women are often paid less than men for the same work, and their employment opportunities are limited. This is because of gender discrimination and cultural biases. Efforts are being made to address this issue, such as the implementation of equal pay laws and the promotion of women in the workforce.

It used to be you could only reach the Phone Company by phone...

In the past, people used to call the Phone Company to make a call. This is no longer the case. Now, people can make calls without having to call the Phone Company. This is because of the invention of the telephone and the development of communication technology. The telephone was invented by Alexander Graham Bell in 1876, and it revolutionized the way people communicated. Since then, the telephone has evolved into a versatile and ubiquitous device that is used for a wide range of purposes.

Our Answer to OPEC

The oil crisis of the 1970s was caused by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). OPEC increased oil prices, causing inflation and economic instability. The United States responded by increasing energy efficiency and developing alternative energy sources. This was called the "oil embargo" and it led to the establishment of OPEC. Today, the United States is still dealing with the effects of this crisis, and efforts are being made to address the issue of energy dependence.
