Downtown parking plan backed

The City Commission has backed a downtown parking plan that will provide for the construction of a new parking garage on the site of the old City Hall. The plan, which has been under consideration for several months, calls for the demolition of the old City Hall and the construction of a new garage to accommodate the growing number of downtown workers. The new garage will be located on the site of the old City Hall and will provide for the parking of 600 vehicles. The plan has been endorsed by the City Commission and will now be submitted to the Department of Transportation for final approval.

New building planned

Two long-time builders have announced intentions to build the new office building for the Post-Citizen, located at 123 Main Street. The building will be a modern structure, incorporating the latest in materials and design. The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

Football banquet slated

The football team of the year is to be honored at a special banquet on November 20th. The banquet will be held at the local hotel and will feature speeches from coaches and players, as well as a special performance by the school band. The event is open to all members of the community and is expected to be a great success.

PJC Homecoming set

Homecoming activities at PJC are set to be held on October 30th. The activities include a parade, a dance, and a football game. The parade will be held in the afternoon, followed by the dance in the evening. The football game will be held on the same day, with all events taking place on the PJC campus.

150 new wells estimated

About 150 new wells are expected to be drilled in the county, according to estimates made by the county geological survey. The survey was conducted in an area where oil and gas deposits are believed to exist. The new wells are expected to increase the county's oil production by 25%.

Supply policy approved

The county commissioners have approved a policy to purchase a supply of water and electricity for the county. The policy will ensure a steady and reliable supply of water and electricity to the county, and will also help to reduce costs for the county.

Mining land given okay

The county commissioners have approved a mining lease for a site in the county. The lease will provide for the extraction of coal and other minerals from the site. The mining operation will be conducted in a way that will minimize environmental impact.

‘Mr. Big Thicket’

Lance Ruster never went to college, wrote a book or held public office — and seldom traveled more than 30 miles from his front porch.

He lived in a weathered frame house at Stetson in rural Hardin County, but his real home — and the place where he spent his waking hours — was left in the verdant, vine-lined depths of the Big Thicket.

Ruster was the Thicket's foremost resident naturalist, and spent most of his life championing the establishment of a park which would preserve its beauties.

Letters addressed to 'Mr. Big Thicket' were routinely delivered to his home by postmen.

As a boy, Ruster searched for rare flowers while others hunted squirrels. Yet stayed days, sometimes weeks, in the Thicket, armed only with a notebook to record his impressions and a cold sweet potato to fend off hunger.

Although he was rarely paid for his services, Ruster was the guide for botanists and scientists who came to study the Thicket, and his love for the region left a lasting impression on the Congressmen who finally created the Big Thicket National Biological Preserve two years after his death.

Today, a part of Ruster's beloved Big Thicket bears his name, and his frame house — deep in the Ruster Unit of the Thicket — is a shrine to a simple, man's crusade.

The quiet achievements of Lance Ruster will endure forever in East Texas, a lasting legacy to the unique heritage of the land and its people.

As a principal contributor to the East Texas economy, we at St. Regis want to be a part of that heritage.

We don’t just work here... we live here.

CATTLE PRODUCTION DECLINES BY 21%

Cattle production in the United States has declined by 21% in the past decade, according to the latest report from the Department of Agriculture. The report shows that the number of cattle in the country has dropped from 20 million in 2010 to 16 million in 2021. The decline is due to a number of factors, including a decrease in the number of beef cattle and a decrease in the number of dairy cattle. The report also shows that the number of cattle in Texas has dropped by 20% during the same period, from 4 million in 2010 to 3.2 million in 2021. The decline in cattle production is expected to have a significant impact on the beef and dairy industries in the state. The report also highlights the need for the industry to adapt to changing market conditions and to focus on improving efficiency and productivity to maintain competitiveness.

U.S. economy to add
20 million jobs

The U.S. economy is expected to add 20 million jobs over the next decade, according to a new report from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The report, titled "The Economic Outlook for the Next Decade," projects that the economy will grow at a steady pace, with employment rising to levels not seen since the mid-1990s.

The report notes that the current economic recovery is strong, with unemployment rates falling to historic lows. It predicts that this trend will continue, with job growth outpacing population growth, leading to a decline in the unemployment rate.

The report also highlights the importance of education and skills training in driving job growth. It notes that workers with higher levels of education and skills are more likely to find employment and earn higher wages. The report suggests that investments in education and workforce development are crucial to ensuring a strong and sustainable economy.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York is one of the 12 regional Federal Reserve Banks that make up the Federal Reserve System, which is an independent agency of the U.S. government that operates as a central bank.

The report is available for download on the Federal Reserve Bank of New York's website.

PJC overcomes Navarro

The weather may have been tough, but the players at PJC were not going to let it get them down. Despite the rain, the PJC football team defeated Navarro College in a hard-fought battle. The game was filled with exciting plays and intense competition, but in the end, PJC emerged victorious with a score of 21-14.

Carthage girls topple Kilgore

Carthage High School's girls basketball team faced a tough challenge against Kilgore College. However, the Carthage players were determined to win and came out on top with a score of 54-42. The game was filled with fast-paced action and powerful moves from both teams, but in the end, Carthage's defense proved to be the deciding factor.

Olympic notes

In a move that surprised many, China's Wenjie Li, 18, won the gold medal in the 100-meter sprint. Li, who trained for four years to prepare for the event, ran a breathtaking time of 10.29 seconds. The Olympic Committee praised Li's dedication and hard work, and announced that they would be sending him to China to receive a hero's welcome.
