Potlatch arrives

Potlatch, the celebration of the energy benefits of the Potlatch Coal Fire which is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 22, will take place at the Potlatch High School. The event will feature a variety of activities, including a fireworks display, live music, and food vendors. The celebration is expected to attract thousands of visitors from the surrounding area.

Re-zoning yields needed housing

The city of Potlatch has approved a re-zoning request for a new housing development. The development, located on the east side of the city, will feature a total of 100 units, providing much-needed housing for the community.

Crime network proposed

Potlatch Police Department has received a proposal for a new crime network system. The system would allow officers to access real-time information on criminal activity in the region.

Worker freed in well mishap

A man was freed from a well after being trapped for several hours. The man, who was working on a farm, fell into a well while attempting to remove a clogged drain. He was rescued by a local emergency services team.

Mexico's oil output

The oil industry is facing a challenging period as Mexico's oil output continues to decline. This is due to several factors, including the aging infrastructure, low investment in exploration and production, and competition from other oil-producing countries. Mexico's oil production has been in decline for several years, and this trend is expected to continue in the near future. The reduction in oil output is having a significant impact on the country's economy, as oil is a major source of revenue. Mexico needs to find ways to diversify its economy and reduce its dependence on oil. This could involve investing in other sectors, such as tourism and agriculture, to create new jobs and stimulate economic growth.

Confidence in nations schools

The school system is facing a crisis as confidence in our nation's schools continues to decline. This is due to several factors, including low teacher salaries, inadequate funding, and a lack of support for students. The result is a system that is not meeting the needs of students, and parents and communities are beginning to lose confidence in the system. This crisis is having a significant impact on the country's future, as it is the foundation of our society. We need to find ways to address this crisis and ensure that our schools are providing a quality education for all students.

You And Your Money

Income is not always a reflection of financial well-being. There are many factors that can affect one's financial situation, such as the cost of living, personal expenses, and the availability of resources. Income is just one aspect of financial well-being, and it is important to consider other factors as well. By having a comprehensive understanding of one's financial situation, it is possible to make informed decisions and improve one's financial well-being.

Title I sets programs

Community Schools are designed to meet a variety of special needs and interests, including self-improvement, vocational training, and adult development. Sponsors for the additional courses are selected by the Director of Continuing Education. However, there is insufficient demand, new courses are added to the schedule. Interested persons should call the Office of Continuing Education at 653-3800, beginning 6-1, and pre-register. Registration will be completed and fees paid at the first class meeting.

Book Club meets in Turner home

Texas Treats
By Doris D. House

Gamerican University the first of 3 in 8
Oberholtzer will attend the first meeting annually, at 8 in the Lamar County House. They will join in the program at 8:30, with two group discussions for the rest of the evening.

The, and Katherinel E. Smith, of the School Central, are enjoying the weather and the festivities. The weather is expected to be sunny and mild throughout the day.

Park is open daily and offers a variety of recreational opportunities. It is located at 2000 West Main Street and features a picnic area, tennis courts, and a children's playground.

Dale's favorite hobbies are reading and cooking. He enjoys spending his free time in the kitchen experimenting with new recipes.

The city is known for its delicious BBQ, which is a popular dish among residents. Dale recommends trying the BBQ at the local restaurant, "Dale's BBQ Shack," for a true taste of the city.

In 1987, the Oberholtzer family moved to the city and established a new residence. They have since become active members of the community and are respected for their contributions.

The Oberholtzer family is grateful for the warm welcome they received when they arrived. They appreciate the friendly atmosphere and the sense of community that the city offers.

The Oberholtzer family believes that their love for the city is shared by all residents. They hope to continue making lasting memories in the city and encourage others to explore and experience it for themselves.

FILM THEMES

INTRODUCING THE KARATE KID

"Karate" the art of simplicity, an art that combines physical movement with mental concentration, was introduced to America in the late 1800s by Japanese immigrants. The first known karate class in America was held in 1879 in New York City. The karate craze in America grew from the popularity of martial arts in the 1940s and 1950s, and reached its peak in the 1980s with the release of the film "The Karate Kid." The film, directed by John G. Avildsen, stars Ralph Macchio as Daniel LaRusso, a young boy who moves to Los Angeles to live with his father, who is a master of karate. When Daniel arrives, he is not only a stranger to Los Angeles, but also undeveloped in the art of karate. He seeks the help of his father's friends, who teach him the ways of karate. The film is a classic tale of friendship, heroism, and personal growth, as Daniel learns the value of hard work and dedication. The film's success led to several sequels and spin-off films, and helped to popularize karate as a sport and art form. Today, karate continues to be practiced by millions of people around the world, and is considered to be one of the most valuable forms of self-defense.
