Nursing home in black financially

The past four months have been financially devastating to the blame for the continuing financial slide at the nursing home operates by the Covenant Health System as a result of lower occupancy, decreased reimbursements and rising operating expenses.

Covenant officials are expected to present a comprehensive financial reconciliation for the facility, which they say will show the extent of the financial challenge the center faces.

"We are not alone in this," said Covenant CEO Dr. Jose Leyendecker. "It's a common story for many healthcare providers, and we are working to address the issues that have contributed to our financial challenges."

Gary school board taking hard look at tax values

The Gary school board plans to hold a public hearing in the next few weeks to discuss revaluations of properties within the district's tax base.

The board has been concerned with the fact that some properties in the district have been undervalued, which could result in lower-than-expected tax revenues for the school district.

The simple snacks are sometimes best

Marshall Douglas

I suggest that the next time everyone goes out for a snack, they should try the simple snacks. I recently went to a convenience store and bought a bag of chips and a can of soda. It was a quick and easy meal. I also had a piece of fruit and a glass of water. It was a healthy and filling meal. I think that people should try to eat more simple snacks in the future. It will help them to stay healthy and save money.

The best game I ever saw was . . .

By RICHARD CORRAN

Some of the most glorious moments in Texas Tech football history have been etched forever in the memories of fans and players alike. One of the most memorable games in Texas Tech history was a 13-13 tie against Oklahoma in 1988.

The game was played on a rainy day in Lubbock, and both teams were evenly matched. Oklahoma went ahead early, but Texas Tech battled back to tie the game in the fourth quarter. The teams exchanged field goals, keeping the game scoreless.

The most exciting moment came in overtime when Texas Tech's John Williams scored a touchdown on a fake field goal attempt to give the Red Raiders a 13-13 tie. The game was stopped due to rain, and it was eventually declared a draw.

Despite the tie, the game is remembered as one of the greatest in Texas Tech history. The Red Raiders were not favored to win, but they battled back to tie the game and then force overtime, which is not a common occurrence in college football.

The game was a testament to the resilience and determination of the Texas Tech football team, and it is a moment that fans will never forget.
