Civil War events staged Sunday

William A. Homan, 18th-century military historian, spoke Sunday about military tactics used by both sides during the Civil War at the Tatum History Hall.

Mr. Homan, who has written several books on the Civil War, said that the number of soldiers killed in action was not as high as often reported. He explained that many soldiers died from diseases such as dysentery, typhoid, and malaria. He also discussed the importance of strategy and tactics in winning battles. Mr. Homan concluded his talk by encouraging the audience to continue learning about the Civil War and its impact on American history.

The event was hosted by the Tatum History Hall, which is located at 102 S. Main St. in Tatum. For more information, please call 915-535-5666.

Tatum banker is shot

The president of Tatum State Bank was shot to death at his office on Monday afternoon. The shooting took place at around 3 p.m., and the victim, 52-year-oldman named Charles P. Johnson, was pronounced dead at the scene.

According to police reports, the shooter was a man who had been a customer of the bank. He had reported to the bank that he was in possession of a weapon and that he intended to harm himself. When the police arrived, the man had already entered the bank and shot the president.

The shooter surrendered to the police and was taken into custody. He has been identified as 35-year-old John W. Smith, who has a history of mental illness.

The investigation is ongoing, and the motive for the shooting is unclear. The community is shocked and saddened by the loss of a respected member of the Tatum community.

Mishap victim severely injured

Edward Michael Lack, 31, of Carthage, was seriously injured in an accident on Monday afternoon. Mr. Lack was driving his motorcycle on the North Main Street in Carthage when he collided with a car.

He was airlifted to a hospital in Dallas, where he is currently in critical condition. The police are investigating the accident, and no charges have been filed.

The accident is a reminder of the importance of wearing a helmet and obeying traffic laws when riding a motorcycle. Drivers and riders are encouraged to take extra precautions to ensure their safety.

Tax board aids museum, airport

By Carl Ocker

The 10-member board of Landmark Community College in Carthage will meet March 1 to consider a proposal from the college to accept a $10,000 loan from the county to pay for the expansion of the museum on the campus. The board will also consider a request from the college to transfer $10,000 from the general fund to the museum's account.

The proposal, which was approved by the college's board of trustees last month, would allow the college to increase the museum's capacity from 1,000 to 2,000 square feet. The museum currently houses the museum's collection of early American history, as well as a collection of contemporary art. The expansion would enable the museum to host more events and exhibitions, as well as to accommodate more visitors.

In addition, the college is seeking a $10,000 loan from the county to help finance the construction of a new wing that will house the art department. The new wing will provide additional classroom space for the art department, as well as a larger art gallery for exhibitions.

The college's request for $10,000 from the county is in addition to the $10,000 already approved by the county for the museum expansion. The college has also applied for a $10,000 grant from the state to help finance the construction of the new wing.

In other news, the board will consider a request from the college to transfer $10,000 from the general fund to the museum's account. The transfer would enable the museum to purchase additional artwork and to support ongoing operations.

Increases inevitable

The board of education has approved a plan to increase the budget for the upcoming school year by 5 percent. The increase will be due to rising costs for supplies and salaries.

The board said that the current state of the economy is making it difficult to control costs, and that the increase is necessary to ensure that the district is able to provide the best possible education for its students.

The increase will affect all areas of the budget, including salaries for teachers and staff, supplies and equipment, and maintenance and repair.

Survey shows citizens favor lights

Punahou's Street Made

Hawaiian lawmakers are considering two additional roads at the site of the current construction, at the cost of approximately $2 million. The new roads would be built by the county and would be financed through a bond issue. The streets would be made of concrete and would have a total length of about 2 miles. The cost of the project is expected to be paid for by the city, which would provide a grant to fund the construction. The decision to build the streets was made after a survey of the community showed that residents were in favor of the proposal. The survey was conducted by the city's planning department, which mailed questionnaires to 1,000 households. The results showed that 75% of respondents favored the new streets. The city is expected to begin construction in the next few weeks. The completion of the project is expected to take about six months. The streets will be named after two local heroes, who the city wishes to honor with this project.

Late Kilgore rally fells Carthage, 3-2

KILGORE – A lead-off home run is a sure hit to any team's confidence. But for Carthage, three straight for the home team en route to a 3-2 win for Kilgore in a district 2A-2 baseball game last Tuesday night at Griffin Field.

The Wildcats, who fell behind 2-0 in the opening inning, found themselves in an even bigger hole in the fourth when Kilgore plated two runs on a single hit and one walk. But a feat of hitting, combined with some aggressive base running, enabled Kilgore to make a comeback and win.

Students study Capitol

By Shalala Jones

A group of Carthage High School students were among hundreds of participants in a program to study government in Washington, D.C. The students, along with hundreds of others, attended a presentation on how government works and how they can get involved. The program, sponsored by the U.S. Senate, provided an opportunity for students to learn about the legislative process and to interact with government officials.

The students were selected through a lottery system and were divided into groups of about 20. Each group was assigned a mentor who helped them navigate their way around the city and provided guidance and support. The program included a tour of the Capitol, visits to the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives, and a meeting with a congressional staff member.

The students were excited to be in Washington, D.C., and learned a lot about the workings of government. Many of them said they had a newfound appreciation for how hard it is to run a government agency and how important it is to stay informed about the issues that affect their lives.

Officer sites need for law enforcement

By Shalala Jones

The Carthage Police Department is looking for ways to improve its operations and increase community engagement. The department is considering several options, including the use of body cameras and community policing initiatives.

The department is also exploring the possibility of adding more officers to its ranks. The current number of officers is below the recommended level, and the department is looking for ways to attract and retain qualified recruits.

The department is also considering the possibility of partnering with local schools to provide training opportunities for students interested in careers in law enforcement.

Austin delegation seeks more Panola industry

By Shalala Jones

The Panola delegation is advocating for more industry in the county. The delegation is working with local leaders and business owners to promote the area as a prime location for companies to locate. The delegation is also working to improve the infrastructure and quality of life in the county to attract new businesses.

The delegation is also focusing on attracting companies that fit the county's economic base, which includes agriculture, manufacturing, and energy. The delegation is also working to create a more business-friendly environment to encourage companies to locate in the county.
