Mayor cites reasons for leaving

Mayor Chapman is moving to a new position as a result of the resignation of the previous mayor. He is the new commissioner, and will be serving as replacement for Joines.

Chapman's resignation will take effect on January 1. The new City Commission will include Mayor Chapman, Joines, and Kelley as replacements for the outgoing members.

In his resignation statement, Mayor Chapman cited his desire to focus on other commitments and personal interests as the primary reason for stepping down. He expressed his gratitude to the residents of Carthage for their support during his tenure and wished the new commission success in the future.

The news of Chapman's resignation has sparked speculation about the future direction of Carthage. Joines and Kelley have both been named as potential replacements, with Kelley being named as the new commissioner.

Chapman's resignation sets the stage for a new chapter in Carthage's political landscape. The city's residents will closely watch as the new commission navigates the challenges and opportunities facing the community.

Meanwhile, the city continues to grow and evolve, with new projects and initiatives under way. The future looks bright for Carthage, as the city moves forward under the leadership of its new commission.

Unusual baby bat...

This baby bat, found hanging in a stupor in a coop in Plant City, was saved by the brood of Dora and John Vining of 13477 U.S. 301 South. The bats were found last week by Darrell Vining, who descends a bee smoker to save the little bats. The Vines, however, had to smoke the beehive and the bats too. "We just had to save it," Dora said. "It's a living thing." The bats have been named "Vining" and "Dora." They have been treated and will be released in the wild. The Vines have been releasing bats for the past 30 years.

Area queens prepare for Miss Texas competition

Myne Morton
Miss North Central Texas

From the school of Panola County schools, Myne Morton, Miss North Central Texas, was the favorite to win last year's Miss Texas title, but she lost out to her friend, Mylinda Hunt, Miss North Central Texas. When she was crowned, Myne was thrilled, and she took her friend's advice to make a name for herself on the South Central Texas stage. Last week, Myne was crowned Miss North Central Texas again, and she has set her sights on the Miss Texas competition.

Mylinda Hunt, Myne's friend, was a big help in preparing for this year's Miss Texas competition. She had helped Myne get into shape and stay focused on winning the title.

Court changes ‘rules’ on lignite

By Mike Miller

A dispute over the rules governing the use of lignite at the Panola County Power Plant was settled out of court this week, when the Texas Supreme Court ruled that the plant’s owners were entitled to use the coal to generate electricity.

The court’s decision, which was announced in a brief order on Monday, affects the ongoing lawsuit between the power plant’s owners and the nearby residents who claim that the emissions from the plant are a public nuisance.

The owners of the plant argue that they have the right to use the coal to generate electricity, and that the emissions from the plant are necessary for the state’s energy needs.

The residents who are suing the plant argue that the emissions are harmful to their health and the environment, and that the plant should be required to use other forms of energy.

The court’s decision is a victory for the owners of the plant, who have been fighting the lawsuit for several years.

City discusses dogs again tonight

By Earl Current

The city council will resume its discussion of a proposed ordinance that would regulate dogs in the city.

The council’s last meeting on the ordinance was in April, and it was adjourned without a vote.

The ordinance, proposed by council member John Smith, would require dogs to be licensed and muzzled, and would ban the sale of certain breeds.

The ordinance was met with opposition from some residents, who argued that it would be too restrictive and would hurt local businesses.

The council will discuss the ordinance again tonight, and it is expected to vote on it at the next meeting.
