TISD slates enrollment

The TISD board is set to approve a new student enrollment policy on Monday. The policy, which will go into effect immediately, will change the way students are counted for funding purposes. Under the new policy, all students enrolled in TISD will be counted, regardless of whether they are attending school in person or remotely. This will result in an increase in the number of students counted for funding purposes, which could lead to an increase in the amount of money the district receives from the state.

Editorial:
New valuations like Christmas

Bev Dwyer

New Christmas if you’re the first one to open the door, and Christmas if you’re the last one.

As a recent property tax letter writer, I’d like to acknowledge the hard work and dedication of the Panola County Appraisal District. I appreciate the efforts to make the appraisal process more transparent and equitable.

An article in the Aug 1st edition of the Panola County Post highlighted the progress of the appraisal district and its impact on property owners. The article mentioned that the district has implemented new technologies to improve the valuation process and provide a more accurate picture of property values.

The article also noted that the district has been working diligently to ensure that property valuations are fair and consistent across the county. This is particularly important in a town like Carthage, where property values can be highly variable depending on location and improvements.

Overall, I believe the Panola County Appraisal District is doing an excellent job in providing accurate and fair property valuations. Thank you for your hard work and dedication to this important task.

Willie had only two words

Willie had only two words: "I'm not going." His simple statement reflected the attitude of countless county officials who have responded to the recent property tax increases. Willie's response was typical of the typewriter's abrupt end to the inquiry. He clearly understood the implications of the question but felt that his voice would not be heard.

The response was a common one among those affected by the property tax increases. Willie's decision to refuse to sell his property was a reflection of the frustration and anger felt by many residents. The recent property tax increases have resulted in significant financial burdens for many homeowners and property owners, and they are concerned about the impact of these changes on the local economy.

The response to the property tax increases has been diverse, with some residents choosing to leave the county and others fighting back against the increases. Willie's decision to stay put was a reflection of his commitment to his community and his belief that it was the right thing to do.

Readers discuss lignite, County hearing and say they love town

Lignite relocation plan

Dear Editor:

I was interested in the article about the lignite relocation plan in the recent issue of the Panola County Post. While I understand the need for this plan, I am concerned about the potential impact on the local environment.

Lignite is a form of coal that is used for energy generation.
It is often referred to as "brown coal" due to its brownish appearance. The relocation plan involves moving lignite from its current location to a new site.

I believe that it is important to consider the environmental implications of this plan. Lignite mining can have significantly negative effects on the local environment, including air and water pollution.

I urge the local government to consider alternative strategies that could minimize the environmental impact of the lignite relocation plan. My hope is that a thorough environmental assessment will be conducted before any decisions are made.

Sincerely,

County hearing

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my concern about the upcoming County hearing. The hearing is scheduled to take place next month and will be held at the County Courthouse.

I am concerned about the transparency and fairness of the hearing. Recent events have raised questions about the county's decision-making process, and I believe that the hearing is an opportunity to address these concerns.

I urge the county to ensure that the hearing is open to the public and that all interested parties have an opportunity to voice their opinions.

Sincerely,

Say they love town

Dear Editor:

I was happy to read the article about the residents who say they love their town in the recent issue of the Panola County Post. It is refreshing to hear about the positive attitudes of the community members.

I believe that it is important to support our local community and to encourage the growth and development of our town. The positive attitudes expressed by the residents are a reflection of the dedication and hard work of the local residents.

I urge the community to continue to support each other and to work together to make our town even better.

Sincerely,

County ups budget, but rejects deputies

By Rick Adler

Panola County commissioners approved $445,000 in additions to the county’s 2010-2011 budget, or a 5.5% increase. This means the county has a $8,438,000 general fund budget.

"We have a number of new programs that were not in the original budget," said County Judge James "Jim" DeBerry. "The only way we can support these programs is by adding to the budget." The new programs include the Panola County Community Center, the Panola County Emergency Medical Services, and the Panola County Sheriffs Office.

On the other hand, the commissioners rejected the proposed budget for the Panola County Sheriff's Office, which was $147,000.

"The sheriff's office budget was rejected because it was not in line with the rest of the county's budget," DeBerry said. "The sheriff's office is responsible for the safety of the county, but we need to make sure that the budget is in line with the rest of the county's budget."
