A LOOK AT IMPORTANT ISSUES FACING PANOLA COUNTY TODAY

Wednesday, September 30, 1983

Pamela Wethcven

Editorial:

Long range plan needed in county

The continuing sentiment over airport property acquisition, and other proposals for the future growth of our county, is a reflection of a long term vision of the future of Panola County. Our leaders need to consider not just the immediate needs of the county but also the needs of future generations.

The growth of our county is not just about adding more homes and businesses. It is about creating a sustainable environment where our children and grandchildren can live and thrive. This means planning for the future, not just reacting to the present.

We need a comprehensive long range plan that addresses not just the immediate needs of the county but also the needs of future generations. This plan should consider issues such as transportation, education, healthcare, and housing. It should also consider the environmental impact of our growth.

The time to start planning for the future is now. Our leaders need to start working on a comprehensive long range plan for Panola County. This plan will ensure that our county remains a great place to live and work for years to come.

Carthage closes non-district campaign in Mt. Pleasant

Bulldogs favored to rebound over Tigers

Carthage, on the verge of concluding its non-district schedule, will travel to Mt. Pleasant in hopes of avoiding a third straight loss to the Yellow Jackets.

The Bulldogs have struggled on both sides of the ball since their 9-0 start and 37-0 victory over Nederland.

"We're coming off a loss to Nederland," Carthage coach Ray Price said. "We need to put it behind us and focus on Mt. Pleasant."

The Yellow Jackets represent Carthage's first non-district test against a team with a winning record, and Price is looking forward to the challenge.

Carthage remains undefeated for the season, but Price wants to prevent the team from becoming complacent.

"They're a very good team," Price said. "They have a lot of athletes and a good defense. We need to prepare ourselves for their speed and athleticism."

Many called, few chosen as jurors

In recent jury selections, less than 1% of those who applied have been called to serve in the United States. Prospective jurors are randomly selected from the list of registered voters in the county. The selection process is designed to ensure a diverse group of citizens is represented on juries.

Judge Ritenour must select the final group of jurors who will serve in the upcoming trial. He must consider various factors, such as the size of the case and the number of potential jurors available. The judge will also consider the qualifications of each juror, including their knowledge of the law and their ability to remain impartial.
