Manhunt jails robbery suspects

By Mike Miller

The manhunt that lasted three days to catch a bank robbery suspect ended with his capture Tuesday in Shreveport, Louisiana.

The suspect, identified as Michael Jones, 26, was taken into custody without incident after being trailed for several blocks in Shreveport by police officers.

Jones was accused of robbing the Bank of Louisiana at gunpoint on Monday, stealing $4,000 from the bank.

The manhunt began after bank employees reported a man entering the bank with a firearm and demanding money.

Jones then fled the scene on foot and was spotted by witnesses who called police.

In pursuit, officers chased the suspect through the streets of Shreveport, finally apprehending him after a brief struggle.

Jones was charged with first-degree robbery and is held without bond pending a court appearance.

Bandits weren't joking

South Sheriffs' Storm

The South Sheriffs' Storm, a group of law enforcement officers from surrounding counties, descended on the area to help catch the suspected bank robber.

Captain Bill Jones of the Shreveport Police Department said the storm included officers from Bossier, Caddo, DeSoto, and Red River parishes.

The officers were divided into teams and patrolled the streets, looking for any sign of the suspect.

Participants in drama...

The capture was the culmination of a drama that unfolded over the past few days.

After the initial robbery, the suspect fled on foot and was later seen leaving the bank by car.

Police launched a search for the suspect, checking multiple leads and questioning numerous witnesses.

The manhunt took on an added urgency as the suspect was believed to be armed and dangerous.

Constable describes chase, confrontation

By Mike Miller

Constable John Thompson of Bossier Parish described the dramatic events that took place as the manhunt came to a close.

Thompson said the suspect, identified as Michael Jones, 26, was a known criminal who had previously been arrested for armed robbery.

The constable said officers followed the suspect for several blocks before finally apprehending him.

'I never had it this good,' Thompson said. 'I thought we had a good chance of catching him. But then he starts running and I'm just like, "What do I do now?"'

A LOOK AT IMPORTANT ISSUES FACING PANOLA COUNTY TODAY

Wednesday, October 19, 1983

Orange peel may solve problem with house pests

Researchers have found that an old-fashioned orange peel can solve a seemingly intractable house pest problem. The pest, which has been困扰ing homeowners for years, is the humble house centipede. Although these creatures are small, measuring only about an inch in length, they can be a nuisance in large numbers. They are known to infest kitchens, bathrooms, and other areas of the home, where they make their way into food and garbage bins, leaving a trail of destruction in their wake.

The solution, according to the researchers, is found in the humble orange peel. They have discovered that when orange peels are placed in strategic locations around the house, the centipedes are attracted to them. The peels are then consumed, providing a natural and effective way to eliminate the pest.

An officer's view of crime problems

Proctor T. Culpepper Jr. "Tom Culpepper," the sheriff of Panola County, has been a law enforcement officer for over 20 years. During his tenure, he has witnessed firsthand how crime has changed over the years, with new tactics and methods being employed by criminals. In this editorial, he shares his perspective on the challenges facing law enforcement today.

"Crime is a complex issue, and it requires a multi-faceted approach," says Culpepper. "The days of simply arresting criminals and sending them to jail are gone. We now have to think about how to prevention and rehabilitation.

Culpepper notes that technology has also played a role in crime. "We can now track and locate suspects using GPS tracking devices," he says. "But we also need to address the root causes of crime, such as poverty and lack of education.

Bullock predicts higher taxes

In his recent budget address, Governor Jesse Bullock predicted that the state's budget would require higher taxes. He cited the need to fund important programs, such as education and healthcare, as well as to address the state's infrastructure needs.

"We must prioritize our spending, and that means finding ways to raise revenue," Bullock said. "We have to be prepared to make difficult decisions, but we also have to be honest with our citizens about the challenges we face."

Jackets given nod
Eagles posing threat

By Earl Chadwell
Although Elysian Fields' talented running attack was slowed by a controversial call in the second quarter, its quick passing game couldn't be stopped and the Jackets found themselves behind the Eagles in the second half. The Jackets were unable to keep up with Elysian Fields' fast-paced offense, and the Eagles won the game 28-14.

The Eagles' passing attack was the key to their victory, as they were able to get the ball to several different receivers and keep the Jackets' defense off balance. The Jackets' defense was able to hold the Eagles' running backs in check, but the Eagles' quarterbacks were able to find open receivers all over the field.

Good health practices make best preventative medicine

Cool weather ushers in flu season

By Pat McGinnis

According to health authorities, the winter months are the peak season for flu due to the colder temperatures. This year, the flu season is expected to be particularly severe.

The flu is caused by a virus that infects the respiratory tract, causing symptoms such as fever, coughing, and fatigue. The virus is highly contagious and can be spread through coughing, sneezing, or direct contact with an infected person.

To prevent the flu, health officials recommend getting vaccinated, washing hands frequently, and avoiding close contact with sick individuals. The flu vaccine is available at most pharmacies and doctor's offices.
