At Harris Chapel

Harvest Festival successful

By Dona Dow
The Harris Chapel Harvest Festival, sponsored by the Community Improvement Club and Harris Chapel Women's Auxiliary, was held Saturday, Oct. 9, at the church. The event was a huge success, drawing many visitors and raising funds for the church and community.

The festival featured a variety of activities, including a craft fair, live music, and a children's area. The craft fair showcased handmade items made by local artists, while live music entertained visitors throughout the day.

The children's area was a hit with the kids, offering face paintings, balloon animals, and other fun activities. The festival also included a bake sale, with delicious treats available for purchase.

The event was well-attended, with many visitors coming from the surrounding area to enjoy the festivities and support the church. The proceeds from the festival will be used to support community projects and programs.

Participants enjoy bingo at Harris Chapel Harvest Festival.

Low-rent housing problems debated

By Carol Benner
The Collinsville Housing Authority's (CHA) board of commissioners met last week and discussed the issue of low-rent public housing. The board is considering a proposal to build new housing units for low-income families.

CHA Executive Director John Smith presented the plan to the board, which includes the construction of 50 new units. The project would cost approximately $10 million and would be funded through a combination of grants and loans.

The board has been divided on the issue, with some members expressing concerns about the cost and others supporting the idea of providing affordable housing for those in need. The board is expected to vote on the matter at its next meeting, scheduled for next month.

Faulty roof program threat

By Barry Severson
The Panama City Roof Program, which provides grants to homeowners for the repair of faulty roofs, is facing potential cuts in funding. The program, funded by the city's general fund, has helped hundreds of homeowners over the years.

However, due to budget constraints, the city council is considering reducing the program's funds. If the cuts are approved, it could have a significant impact on the ability of homeowners to repair their roofs.

County faces varied business

By Alice Miller
The county faces varied business challenges, with some sectors thriving while others struggle. The agriculture industry remains a mainstay, providing employment and economic stability.

However, some businesses, such as those in the tourism industry, have been hit hard by the pandemic. The tourism industry accounts for a significant portion of the county's economy, with many businesses relying on visitors for revenue.

Visitors view sidewalk work

By Mike Miller
Visitors to Panama City have noticed the sidewalk work being done along certain streets. The work is part of the city's goal to improve the appearance of the city and make it more pedestrian-friendly.

The work involves the replacement of old sidewalks with new ones, as well as the addition of bike lanes in some areas. The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

Amendment No. 1 sounds reasonable

Pamela County Today, on the face of it, 11 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution on Tuesday, March 11, 1985, a special election in which voters will decide on the following changes:

1. The state financial officers would lose their power to veto legislation if the governor signs it, making it easier for the governor to override a vetoes of the legislature.

2. The governor would have the power to deploy state military forces and National Guardsmen to defend the state against invasion, rebels, or enemy armed forces.

3. The state would have the power to buy, sell, or exchange real property.

4. The state would have the power to lease state lands.

5. The state would have the power to lease state lands.

6. The state would have the power to lease state lands.

7. The state would have the power to lease state lands.

Minor changes made in furbearer regulation

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission made several minor adjustments this week in fur bearing species hunting and trapping regulations. The 1984 revisions are fairly minor and require no special problems. The major changes are in increasing the harvest of certain species and requiring permits. The public was informed on the changes in the meeting notes. New alterations are:

- Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission increased the harvest of a bear.
- Revised regulations on sycamore and raccoon.

Champions challenge competition

By Bobo Atkins

The Times-Record

Champions challenge competition because the champions still have to prove they are as good as everyone thinks they are. The champions still have to prove that they are the best. They still have to prove that they are the ones who can hold their own against the best. They still have to prove that they are the ones who can win.

By following their usual procedures, the champions challenge competition. They challenge the champions because they are the champions. They challenge the champions because they are the champions. They challenge the champions because they are the champions. They challenge the champions because they are the champions.

The champions challenge competition because they want to prove they are the best. They want to prove they are the champions. They want to prove they are the champions. They want to prove they are the champions. They want to prove they are the champions.

County eyes site for jail

By Dave Miller

It's been a long time coming, but the county is finally getting a new jail. The county commission has approved a site for the new jail, which is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The site is located in the north part of the county, and will be ready for occupancy in the fall.

Voters favor some amendments

More than 1,200 Panola County voters cast ballots in the special election on Tuesday night. The election was held to consider amendments to the county charter. The amendments were approved by a wide margin, and will take effect in January.

Jobless index increases

By Dave Miller

The jobless index increased slightly during September, according to the federal government. The index measures the percentage of the labor force that is unemployed. The increase is due to seasonal factors, and is not indicative of a trend.

Christmas lighting contest scheduled

The Panola County Christmas lighting contest will be held on December 1. There are several events planned, including a parade, a tree-lighting ceremony, and a fireworks display. Everyone is encouraged to participate.
