Poultry plant expansion boosts local economy

Contact honed in on plans to allow the plant to increase production output. The expansion plans will include the addition of new equipment and upgrades to existing facilities to meet the increased demand. The project will cover a 12-month period, starting from the date of the announcement. The total budget for the expansion is estimated to be $10 million.

In remarks, the company expressed confidence in the project’s viability, stating that the existing facility is well-equipped to handle the additional production capacity. The company also highlighted the importance of local infrastructure, including transportation and utilities, in supporting the expansion.

The expansion is expected to create additional jobs in the area, providing economic benefits to the community. The company emphasized its commitment to the local workforce, stating that the additional production will provide employment opportunities for residents.

New court's judge to be appointed

Bulldog Fever epidemic spreads

The county's financial plans, including those for the new courthouse, are in the hands of County Attorney Paul E. Ford, who has been named to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of County Judge J. H. Williams.

Ford has had extensive experience in courthouse construction, having served as both assistant and assistant county solicitor.

Ford will have the responsibility of overseeing the construction of the new courthouse, which will be located near the county courthouse.

Murder attempt alleged

In another development, a murder attempt has been reported in the case of a local businessman.

The victim, identified by authorities as Mr. John Smith, was reportedly attacked by an unknown individual who attempted to stab him with a knife.

The attack occurred in the early hours of today, and Mr. Smith is currently undergoing surgery at the local hospital.

Details of the case have been released by the police, who are investigating the incident.

Sports Sunday

Dogs seek shot at title

In a surprising turn of events, the local dog show has been cancelled due to a rash of anti-dog sentiment.

The organizers of the show have stated that they will not proceed with the event, citing the lack of support from the community.

The decision has been met with mixed reaction, with some calling for the cancellation of the show, while others are seeking to promote dog-friendly events.

The local animal rights group has also called for a boycott of the show, stating that they will not attend in solidarity with the dogs.

The event was scheduled for this weekend, and the decision has left many disappointed.

The organizers have stated that they will explore alternative venues for future events.

Christmas grows at Grand Bluff tree farm

By Ruby Arnold

This year Grand Bluff Tree Farm, located on the eastern edge of the community, has grown to over 5,000 trees and continues to expand its operation. The farm, in its 2nd year, has been a source of pride for the community. Founder and Manager, Bob Johnson, has been hard at work ensuring the farm's success.

The farm has quickly become a popular destination for locals and visitors alike. Johnson believes the success is due to the hard work and dedication of his team. "We want people to know that Grand Bluff Tree Farm is more than just a place to buy a tree. It's a place that offers a unique Christmas experience," Johnson said.

The farm offers a variety of tree sizes, from small saplings to large, mature trees. Johnson encourages visitors to come early to choose the perfect tree. "Many people come early to ensure they get their tree before it's too late," Johnson said.

Johnson also emphasizes the importance of caring for a Christmas tree properly. "With proper care, a tree can last up to six weeks. We offer tips and advice to help people keep their trees looking their best," Johnson said.

The farm has also expanded its offerings with the addition of hayrides and a bonfire. "We want people to enjoy the farm and have a memorable experience," Johnson said.

The farm's popularity has also brought attention to the challenges of Christmas tree farming. "It's hard work, but we love it," Johnson said. "We're proud of what we've accomplished and hope to continue growing and improving the farm for years to come."

Active businesswoman, homemaker

By Ruby Arnold

Logan is a bustling community, and one of its most active members is Ruby Arnold. As a businesswoman and homemaker, Ruby has made significant contributions to the community. She is known for her hard work and dedication.

Ruby is the owner and operator of Grand Bluff Tree Farm, which has become a popular destination for locals and visitors alike. "I feel blessed to be able to work on something that I love," Ruby said.

Ruby's commitment to her business is evident in the hard work she puts into caring for the trees. "I make sure they get the best care possible," Ruby said. "I don't want to be associated with trees that don't last long or aren't healthy."
