County outlook bright for 1984

By Warren Miller

The year 1984 should be a much better year for most Panola County residents than was the year 1983. According to local businessmen, in-"dustrialists and political leaders who are aware of things to come, the year should be a good one.

A look at projects currently under way and the drawing boards shows that many individuals and companies not only are optimistic about a good 1984, but are willing to spend large sums of money in Panola County.

There is a show of faith in the future of the Panola County economy by those who have invested millions of dollars in new or expanded facilities in Panola County in recent years. These ranges from new shopping and banking facilities to restaurants, from new homes and apartment construction to industrial complexes which is adding 200 employees to the local labor force. Meanwhile, the Texas Em- ployee Compensation reported Friday that the latest exam- ple of the Panola County economy is down to 8.9% 8.9% for the quarter. This is the lowest rate ever recorded for a quarter in Panola County.

Employment was calculated as $17,072,347, which is down $2,000,000 from the $18,000,000 during the last quarter of 1982. However, the local unemployment rate is expected to improve in the next few months due to the improved economic conditions in the county.

Additionally, the county's economy continues to grow with new businesses and expansions of existing ones. The local job market is expected to improve with the addition of new jobs.

Milk is also expected to be of great benefit to the county, as the demand for milk is expected to increase due to the growing population. The new dairy facility is expected to provide more jobs and increase the local economy.

Who would you nominate for Citizen of the Year?

It is time again for the annual award to be announced on January 10. This award is sponsored by the Panola County News Paper and will be announced at the Panola County Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet which will be held at the Panola County Fairgrounds.

Nominations are due by January 10. The winner will be announced at the banquet and presented with a plaque.

Many closing on Monday

As the holiday season comes to a close, many businesses in Panola County will be closing their doors for the winter. Many small businesses have given their employees a week off to relax and enjoy the holiday season. However, some businesses have decided to close early to give their employees a well-deserved break.

For example, the downtown area will be closed on Christmas Day, while the local grocery store will remain open until 10 p.m. on Christmas Eve.

Congressman optimistic

By Earl Archer

U.S. Rep. John B. Hall, D-Panola, expressed optimism Thursday about the future of Beckville as he announced during ceremonies dedicating the new Beckville City Hall.

Hall was featured speaker for the ceremonies which included more than 100 people in the area.

When Congressman Hall said he was coming to Beckville, the community was excited. The people were eager to see the new building, which was three years in the making.

The mood overtook the city's largest meeting place in the city and included Beckville Bank, Thomas A. Adams, who welcomed those attending the program.

Opening ceremonies were given by State Rep. Bill Holley and Beckville Postmaster Joe Holley, who was on hand to welcome the crowd. Hall also mentioned that he was almost sure for the community because he had spent an eight year period in the city and knew the city and knew the people and knew the area. Hall also added, "I love a beautiful eight year period back in Panola and I was going to be there again for another eight years and I was going to be there again for another eight years and I was going to be there again for another eight years."
U.S. Rep. Hall praises efforts of Beckville council

Robert Bankhead
A member of the Beckville council for the past 16 years, Bankhead said he was impressed with the effectiveness of the council and its ability to make decisions that benefit the community.

"I think the council has done a great job," Bankhead said. "They have made some tough decisions, but they have always been willing to listen to the people and make the best decisions they can." Bankhead added that he believes the council's efforts have helped to improve the quality of life in Beckville.

For pets, livestock

Special care required in winter

During the winter, there are pets and livestock safety precautions. Pamalee County has a small amount of snow on the ground, and this may be the reason why some animals are not getting enough food or water. The animals need to be checked regularly to ensure they are healthy and safe.

Showing dogs Johnson family project

By Patsie-Williams

A group of small dogs with unique markings was the center of attention during a recent show. The dogs, all powder puffs, had been trained to perform various tricks. They included the local show, which is held annually in Carthage.

The Johnsons, who own the dogs, said they have been raising powder puffs for several years. The family's breeding program focuses on producing dogs with distinctive markings, including spots and patches. They have been successful in their efforts, producing a litter of puppies with unique markings.

The Johnsons plan to continue their breeding program and expand their collection of powder puffs. They hope to eventually have a larger kennel of dogs and offer breeding services to other enthusiasts. They are also considering the possibility of entering their dogs in national competitions.

The Johnsons' dedication to their dogs has been recognized by the local community, who have praised their efforts and the unique qualities of their powder puffs. The family is looking forward to the future and the continued success of their breeding program.
