Judge sets 30 days in slammer

Pamela Foy, 30, of the Law, has been sentenced to 30 days in jail for her involvement in a recent theft case. She was arrested last week for stealing property valued at over $2,000 from a local business.

The judge said that the defendant was not remorseful and that she had contributed to the problem of crime in the area. He added that she had repeatedly committed similar offenses and that her actions were a threat to the community.

According to the prosecutor, Foy was caught red-handed in the act of stealing a large sum of money from a cash register. The evidence gathered at the scene was overwhelming and the defendant was ultimately convicted.

Foy is scheduled to begin serving her sentence on Thursday at the Panola County Jail. She is expected to be released in about 30 days, depending on her behavior while in custody.

Fillies end slump, rip Navarro, 77-56

CORPUS CHRISTI - A strong performance from Sherry Hynes and Pamela Blossom caused the team to break their streak of losses to the party on Saturday at the Tejas Eastern Conference play. The Fillies successfully defended their territory against the Navarro Lady Hoyas, winning by a narrow margin of 77-56.

Hynes and Blossom both contributed significantly to the Fillies’ victory, demonstrating their skills on both offense and defense. Hynes, with her 10 points, and Blossom, with her 15 points, were instrumental in keeping the Hoyas at bay.

The Fillies’ defensive strategy was particularly effective, denying the Hoyas the opportunity to score. The Fillies ended the game with a strong defense, making it difficult for the Hoyas to find their rhythm.

This win marks a significant improvement for the Fillies, who have been struggling recently. The team will hope to maintain their momentum as they look ahead to future games.

Our Faith Should Not Be Overshadowed By Popular Myths

The legend that the duration of winter depends on whether or not a garden grower sees his shadow in popular lore that persists today, in defiance of all modern weather prediction. It's a story widely believed that weather conditions in the far north can provide a warm climate because of the mild winter conditions, and this is why the cold winters in the far north are often referred to as the "hot season." The reality is, however, that the climate in the far north is not necessarily favorable for plant growth, and the legend of seeing one's shadow on the day of winter solstice is not a reliable way to predict the weather.
