Editorial:

County should provide more fire help

Two and a half volunteers from Covington, Washington, and St. John, Community Fire and Rescue, are leaving a fire department in the United States, which many regard as one of the best in the world. The decision was made after the county council, which runs the department, voted to reduce the number of firefighters from 36 to 24. The council said it was necessary to cut costs in order to balance the budget.

Area fire danger remains high

The fire danger in the area is still high, with the potential for wildfires. The county has issued a red flag warning, advising residents to take precautions. The fire danger is due to the dry conditions and high winds that are expected in the area.

Dog issue faces April referendum

The city of Covington is preparing to refer a dog ordinance to the voters in April. The ordinance would limit the number of dogs that can be owned by a household and set fines for violations. The city council passed the ordinance last month, but it needs to be approved by the voters.

flu problems remain 'normal'

The flu outbreak continues to affect the area, but doctors say it is not as severe as in previous years. The flu is still circulating, but the number of cases is lower than in the past. The doctors advise people to get vaccinated and practice good hygiene to prevent the spread of the virus.

area blood drive nets 82 pints

The Covington Blood Drive was held last week, and 82 pints of blood were collected. The blood will be used to help other patients in need. The drive was organized by the local hospital and supported by the community.

Carthage Safeway manager glad to be home

By Carl Chestnut

After spending a number of years away from the Carthage Safeway, manager Marvin Musick is happy to be home. "I had the opportunity to work elsewhere and I took advantage of that opportunity," Musick said. "But after a few years, I realized how much I missed Carthage and the Safeway. In the end, I decided to come back and I’m glad I did."

Musick and George Rowes, a local photographer, were driving through the town when they noticed a sign for the Safeway. "We thought, why not? We’ve been away for a while and we haven’t had a chance to come back," Musick said. "It was a good decision and I’m happy with the result."
