Muiraul well plagued, again
Organisms found in water supply

By Bob Gruman
Local health officials, concerned about prolonged periods of羊肉 in the city's water supply, have been testing samples of the water to prevent any possible contamination. The organisms were discovered in samples taken from the Muiraul well, which supplies water to the city and some surrounding areas.

City eyes plan to 'pay as you go'

By Earl Greaves
City officials are considering a new plan to "pay as you go," which would allow residents to pay for their water usage on a monthly basis. Currently, the city charges a flat rate for water usage, but this new plan would mean that residents would only pay for the water they consume.

Downtown spokesman says workshop needed

The downtown spokesmen in town have been studying various aspects of the downtown area in order to find ways to improve it. They have identified several areas that need attention, such as the pedestrian flow and the overall appearance of the streets.

One of the most pressing issues is the parking situation. The spokesmen have suggested that a workshop be held to discuss possible solutions, such as the installation of more parking meters or the creation of a parking lot.

Another concern is the maintenance of the public spaces. The spokesmen have noted that some of the benches and lamps are in need of repair, and they have suggested that a workshop be held to discuss ways to improve these areas.

The spokesmen have also suggested that a workshop be held to discuss the possibility of installing more public art in the downtown area. They believe that this would not only enhance the aesthetic appeal of the area, but also attract more tourists.

Overall, the spokesmen believe that a workshop would be a productive way to address the various concerns of the downtown area.

24-hour banking open

First State Bank and Trust Company of Carthage President Div. P. W. Price announced this week that his bank is ready for a new convenience to customers which is growing nationwide in popularity and use.

The local financial institution has installed the first 24-hour electronic bank teller facility in the county which will allow customers the convenience of making deposits, withdrawals, account transfers and other important transactions anytime of the week, day or night.

With payment of purchase and sales checks, as well as a wide variety of services, the facility is open 365 days a year with a new Pulse leone system as one customer put it, "can get excited about." Says banking representative Carla Greeson, "This is just another of the many new innovations First State Bank is bringing to our customers to make them the ultimate in customer service.

In addition to other features, the Pulse 24-hour facility will allow up to $100 in cash withdrawals and deposits, with a maximum of $2,000 allowed per day. Pulse is also available for in- house checking. Panola County Night break in other counties, as well as additional states, joining the system all the time, makes First State Bank President Div. P. W. Price optimistic.
