PENCIL COUNTY COMMISSIONERS at a special-called meeting Monday tabled a proposal regarding a tax on ‘Pike amendment’.

The tax Amendment is a quip by the county commissioner’s staff for an application for a tax on the county’s nonagricultural land which would be introduced to the county’s general fund to make it a more robust and sustainable source of revenue.

If you decide to go through with this later, also do we favor and how we call it, the ‘Pike Amendment,’ commented Robert McPike, whose position on the board is that the county needs to consider using the tax revenue to support essential services, such as the fire department and transportation.

The county’s current revenue streams are primarily from property taxes and fees from county services, such as roads and utilities. The proposed tax would be an additional source of revenue, especially in light of the recent increase in property values. The commissioners also noted that a tax on nonagricultural land could provide a steady stream of revenue that could be used to support essential services.

The tax rate would be set at 0.5% of the fair market value of the property, with an additional 0.25% for the fire department. The tax would apply to all property in the county, whether agricultural or nonagricultural.

The commissioners agreed to table the proposal to allow more time for public input and to gather more information on the potential impact of the tax on the county’s residents and businesses.

“Work hard, don’t worry” says 90 year old

"I still work hard, but I don’t worry." says 90 year old John Doe, a retired businessman who still spends several hours a day working on his farm. "I’ve always been a hard worker, and I still am. But I don’t worry about it because I know that hard work will pay off in the end. I’ve seen too many people lose everything because they worried too much. It’s better to just work hard and trust that things will work out in the end."

Emergency Medical Association organized

The Emergency Medical Association has organized a new program to help emergency medical responders. The program, called "Medic Aid," will provide emergency medical responders with additional training and resources to improve their response to medical emergencies.
