Oil companies seeking reduction in mineral evaluations in Panola County

By Wes Parley

A suit brought last week by Panola County officials against the companies that own the mineral rights in Panola County was settled Friday in federal court.

The suit was filed by the Panola County Tax Appraisal Staff in federal court against Panola County on behalf of the county.

The suit was settled by Panola County officials against the companies that own the mineral rights in Panola County. The companies that were sued were: Panola County Petroleum Co., with offices in Panola County, and Panola County Bank.

The suit was settled for a total of $15,000, with $10,000 of that amount to be paid to the county and the remaining $5,000 to be paid to the companies.

Federal approval given to state school board

By a small vote, the state school board approved a proposal to extend the current school year by four weeks. The extension is expected to provide additional days for the state's public schools, allowing for a more comprehensive curriculum and improved student outcomes. The move has been met with mixed reactions from educators and parents, with some expressing concerns about increased workload and potential distractions in the summer months. The state board has defended the decision, citing the need to adapt to changing educational standards and improve the quality of education statewide.

Talk-Line

Move to close schools next week

The state school board has voted to close schools next week, citing the need to address a significant increase in student absences due to illness. The decision comes amid rising concerns about the spread of a new viral strain, which has caused a spike in reported cases across the state. Officials have warned that the closure could be extended if the situation does not improve. Parents and educators have expressed concern about the impact on learning and the potential for further disruptions. The state board plans to review the situation weekly to determine the need for any future changes.

Robbers elude county roadblocks

A group of armed robbers successfully evaded roadblocks set up by local authorities during a high-stakes heist. The robbers, who had targeted a local bank, managed to escape unharmed after2 hours of intense pursuit. Authorities are now calling for increased security measures and better coordination between police departments to prevent similar incidents in the future. The community has expressed outrage over the brazen crime, with many calling for tougher laws and more robust law enforcement strategies.

Letters to the editor:

‘Afternoon stroll’ alarms authorities

Local authorities have responded to reports of a suspicious event in the city center, which initially raised concerns about a possible threat. The investigation has since concluded that the situation was not related to any criminal activity. Authorities have emphasized the importance of community vigilance and have encouraged residents to remain vigilant and report any unusual activities to the police. The community has expressed relief at the outcome, with many praising the quick and thorough response from local law enforcement.

Cats given lesson

For several weeks the U of L fan has been waiting patiently for the return of their beloved Cats. The wait has finally come to an end, and the Cats did not disappoint.

The Kittens, led by their star quarterback, played a dominating game against their arch-rivals, the Lions. From the very first whistle, the Cats were in control, putting points on the board with ease.

The second half was the highlight of the game, as the Kittens pulled away with a series of impressive plays. The crowd went wild as the Cats sealed the victory, 47-14.

The Kittens' defense was rock solid, holding the Lions scoreless in the second half. The offense, led by their quarterback, put up a spectacular performance with touchdowns galore.

The Cats will look to build on this momentum as they prepare for their next game against the Bears. They are confident and ready to take on any challenge that comes their way.

New weekly column introduced
Searching for family roots?

Editor's Note: Robert Wilson, Professor Emeritus of Foundations of Education and History, has just launched a new column, "Searching for Family Roots," in The Shoo October. This regular feature will explore the history and genealogy of families, focusing on the rich tapestry of family stories that make up our collective past. Each column will feature a new family, their history, and their connections to the broader community.

In this debut column, Professor Wilson dives into the history of the Johnson family, whose roots trace back to the early 1800s in New England. The Johnsons were farmers, entrepreneurs, and community leaders, and their legacy continues to influence the local area today.

Wilson begins his exploration by tracing the family's migration from New Hampshire to Massachusetts. He then delves into the life of Jonathan Johnson, the family patriarch, who established the family farm and served as a local politician.

To learn more about the Johnson family and their impact on the community, be sure to check out Professor Wilson's column in The Shoo October. Each week, he will introduce a new family and explore their history, offering a unique perspective on the rich tapestry of family stories that make up our collective past.

Fall Fling recipe revealed

Fall Fling is just around the corner, and we're all excited for the colorful leaves, crisp air, and delicious fall recipes! Here's a perfect recipe for your next Autumn gathering.

Pecan Pie

Ingredients:
- 9-inch pie crust
- 1 1/2 cups brown sugar
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup whole milk
- 1/4 cup butter, melted
- 2 cups pecans

Instructions:
1. Preheat oven to 350°F.
2. Roll out pie crust and place in pie plate.
3. In a medium bowl, combine brown sugar, granulated sugar, cornstarch, and cinnamon.
4. In a separate bowl, whisk together eggs, milk, and melted butter.
5. Stir in the sugar mixture and pecans into the egg mixture.
6. Pour the pecan mixture into the pie crust.
7. Bake for 50-60 minutes, or until the pie is golden brown and a wooden toothpick inserted into the center comes out clean.
8. Allow to cool before serving.

Perdue to wed Herrin

Perdue, the beloved dog of the Johnson family, is set to marry Herrin, the family cat, in a special ceremony on Saturday, October 22. The couple will be married at 3 PM in the Johnson family's backyard, with the entire family and friends in attendance.

The ceremony will feature a traditional wedding cake, decorated with the couple's initials and a heart, and a champagne toast. The couple will exchange vows, and the ceremony will be officiated by their favorite priest, Father John.

The Johnson family is preparing for a special reception afterwards, with a buffet of homemade fall-themed foods and drinks. The guests are encouraged to dress up in their favorite fall attire, and there will be a costume contest at the end of the reception.

Disability vets eligible for additional benefits

Disabled vets eligible for additional benefits

Veterans receiving VA compensation for service-connected disabilities are eligible to receive additional benefits under existing program regulations, according to a new VA directive. The directive applies to all veterans who have been awarded VA disability ratings, including those who have been newly awarded.

The basic period of eligibility for additional benefits is 12 months following the date the VA determines that the veteran is entitled to receive disability compensation. The veteran must apply for the benefits within 12 months of the date of determination.

Veterans who apply for additional benefits within 12 months of the date of determination will be eligible for the full amount of benefits. Those who apply after the 12-month period will be eligible for a reduced amount of benefits.

Veterans are encouraged to contact their local VA office for more information on how to apply for these additional benefits.
