Long awaited repaving of square approved

Carthage benefits from $413 million program

The downtown square of Carthage, Texas, is set to receive a much-needed facelift thanks to a $413 million program approved by the city. The project, which is expected to start in the next few weeks, will involve the repaving of the square, the addition of new lighting, and the creation of new seating areas. The city is confident that the project will not only improve the aesthetic appeal of the square but also enhance the quality of life for its residents.

Jail site clearing may be prompted by prisoner cost

As the cost of housing prisoners continues to rise, the need for a new jail site in Carthage becomes increasingly pressing. The current facility is no longer sufficient to meet the demands of the growing prison population. The council is considering several options, including the purchase of a new site or the expansion of the existing facility. The community is hoping that a new jail will be built soon to alleviate the overcrowding and improve the conditions of the prisoners.

The Hudson County Board of Commissioners announced recently that they are seeking nominations for the position of county auditor. The current auditor, who has held the position for the past five years, is retiring at the end of the month. The board is looking for someone with experience in accounting and financial management to take over the position. Interested candidates are encouraged to submit their applications to the county clerk by the end of the month.

Guarding the brew

The annual Homecoming Queen candidate competition is set to be held on the first weekend of October. The event is open to all high school students in the area, and the winner will be crowned during the Homecoming celebration. The competition will include a pageant and a talent show, with the winner being determined by a panel of judges. The event is expected to draw a large crowd, and the community is looking forward to the festivities.

The new jail in Carthage is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The facility is being designed to accommodate the increasing number of prisoners, and it will include modern facilities such as a gym, a cafeteria, and a library. The council is hoping that the new jail will not only provide a safer environment for the prisoners but also enhance the quality of life for the residents of Carthage.

Multiple cities have expressed interest in hosting the event, and the council is currently evaluating the options. The city is looking for a place that can accommodate a large number of people and that is close to the stadium. The council is hoping that the decision will be made by the end of the month.

Nature-run-wild not always the best sight to see

By John Cothran

Once there were days on the farm, not long ago, when the barn was filled with the clanging of horses' hooves against the floor and the clinking of cell phones against the tin roof. But those days are gone now, and we are left with only memories.

The first time I visited the farm, I was impressed with the number of horses. There were at least 10 of them, all of different colors and sizes, running around the barn, kicking up their heels, and making loud noises. I was amazed at how much noise they could make with such a small amount of space.

But as time went on, my impression of the farm changed. I began to see the horses as nothing more than a nuisance, taking up too much space and making too much noise. I started to wonder if there was anything else I could do to get rid of them.

Then one day, I noticed something interesting. As the horses were running around in circles, they started to pull the barn doors open, revealing a small room inside. I walked in and saw a group of people sitting on chairs, playing cards and talking. I was shocked. I had never seen anyone else in the barn before.

Over the next few days, I visited the barn again. Each time, I saw more people inside. I began to realize that the horses were not just a nuisance, but a source of income for the farm.

As the days went on, I began to understand the problem. The horses were not the problem. The problem was the lack of space and the lack of people. The horses were just a symbol of the problem, and the solutions were not going to come from getting rid of them.

So I decided to take action. I contacted the local government and asked them to provide more space for the horses. They agreed, and soon the barn was filled with even more horses. I was amazed at how much noise they could make with even more space.

But as time went on, my impression of the farm changed again. I began to see the horses as nothing more than a nuisance, taking up too much space and making too much noise. I started to wonder if there was anything else I could do to get rid of them.

Now, when I visit the farm, I see the horses as nothing more than a nuisance, taking up too much space and making too much noise. I wonder if there is anything else I can do to get rid of them.
4-H’ers stage fete

By ROBERT C. GREER

County Judge Mack Koontz will have a hard time breathing the moment he sees the 4-H building on the National 4-H in October—in fact, the entire building. The largest 4-H project in the county, the building will be furnished with heating and air conditioning for the first time.

Over the years millions of 4-H’ers have gained leadership skills and other valuable skills while participating in traditional 4-H programs.

Back in the 1940s, 4-H’ers would haul a lot of cold-water across the nation during the winter months to keep the parts of the building from freezing, making it difficult for 4-H’ers to work on projects. Through the years, the building has been painted and repainted, and now the entire project is ready for occupancy.

The 4-H program is conducted throughout the year through the Cooperative Extension Service and is linked to the county's extension service, which provides 4-H programs to all youth.

The panel ruled that the city did not have to prove

Classical vacation detailed

At the beginning of the month, my family and I decided to take a classical vacation to Europe. We started our journey in Rome, where we visited the Colosseum and the Roman Forum. Then we traveled to Paris, where we saw the Eiffel Tower and enjoyed the French cuisine. After that, we visited London, where we saw the Tower of London and the British Museum. Finally, we ended our trip in Vienna, where we experienced the culture and music of Austria.

Bulldog freshmen register first win

For the freshmen in the Carthage Bulldogs' lineup, it was their first game of the season. The team was victorious over the Bartlett Bulldogs, 5-0. The Carthage Bulldogs defense was solid, holding the Bartlett offense to just one first down in the entire game. The Carthage Bulldogs were led by their star quarterback, Rusty Robbins, who accounted for all five of their points in the game. Robbins completed 11 of 20 passes for 175 yards and a touchdown. The Carthage Bulldogs defense was also dominant, allowing only 35 yards rushing and 10 passing yards to the Bartlett offense. The game was held at Carthage Stadium, and both teams were evenly matched in the first quarter. However, Carthage took control in the second half, outscoring Bartlett 21-0. The Carthage Bulldogs will face their next opponent, the Owls, in their next home game on September 23rd. The Owls have a strong defense, but Carthage is confident they can come out on top.
