$1.4 million incinerator okayed

By Walt Givens

Construction on a new $1.4 million solid waste incineration facility in the county began this week. The facility is expected to be completed in 1989 and will be located at the county landfill.

The incinerator will be able to handle up to 600 tons of waste per day, with a maximum capacity of 300 tons per day. It is designed to eliminate the need for landfills and will significantly reduce the amount of waste sent to landfills.

The incinerator is expected to begin operating in late 1989, and it will be able to handle about 600 tons of waste per day. The facility will be able to process a variety of waste, including paper, plastic, and metal.

The incinerator is expected to reduce the amount of waste sent to landfills by about 60%, saving the county an estimated $300,000 per year.

Exit holiday season, enter taxes

By Debra Givens

As the holiday season draws to a close, many people are looking forward to the start of the new year. The end of the holiday season also means that the tax season is on the horizon.

The IRS has announced that tax returns for the 1984 tax year will be due on April 15, 1985. The deadline for filing taxes can be extended to June 15, 1985, if necessary.

The IRS has also announced that it will be expanding its computer system to allow for faster processing of tax returns. This will help to reduce the wait time for tax refunds.

In addition, the IRS has announced that it will be conducting more audits to ensure that individuals are paying their fair share of taxes. This will help to ensure that the tax system is fair and equitable for all.

White stays busy during holiday season

By Linda Walker

Laura, the state's Department of Social Security tax collector, has been busy over the past few weeks. She's been answering calls from people who have questions about their Social Security benefits. Laura said she's been working 12 hours a day to keep up with the demand. She said that the number of calls has been increasing each year, and she's been trying to hire more people to help her out. Laura said that she's been trying to work more efficiently and has been using new technologies to help her answer questions quicker. She said that she's been working through the holidays, and she's hoping to have the answers to people's questions before the new year. Laura said that she's been working long hours, but she's been happy to help people figure out their Social Security benefits.

Editorial:
Resolution good idea for local governments

Evidently the trend of adding a few new resolutions to the city's annual agenda continues. While this trend has been criticized in the past, it seems that the city is still in need of further ideas and plans.

For the time being, however, the city has chosen to focus on a few new resolutions that are likely to benefit the city and its residents. One of the new resolutions is designed to address the issue of parking in the downtown area. The city has always struggled with parking shortages, and this new resolution aims to address that problem.

Another new resolution is focused on the city's infrastructure. The city has been struggling with aging infrastructure for some time, and this new resolution aims to address that issue.

Overall, the city is taking steps to improve its services and address some of its most pressing issues. While some may criticize the trend of adding new resolutions, it is clear that the city is taking action and working to improve its services for its residents.

Resolute nod for diets in '85

By Shirley Anthony

A resolute nod for the many people who struggle with maintaining a healthy weight was made recently in Washington, D.C. The government's new dietary guidelines, which were released earlier this year, call for a reduction in the number of calories consumed each day to aid in weight loss. The guidelines also stress the importance of consuming a variety of foods and engaging in regular physical activity.

The guidelines are intended to help Americans maintain a healthy weight and reduce the risk of developing chronic diseases such as heart disease, diabetes, and certain types of cancer. The government hopes that the new guidelines will help Americans make healthier food choices and improve their overall health.

While the guidelines are a good step in the right direction, many people still struggle with maintaining a healthy weight. This is where dietitians and other healthcare professionals can play a crucial role in helping people achieve their weight-loss goals. They can provide personalized guidance and support to help individuals make healthy lifestyle changes.
