A LOOK AT IMPORTANT ISSUES FACING PANOLA COUNTY TODAY

You asked for it, you got it ... Talk-Line

By Jim Mattos

Lately we have had to stop suddenly, not because of oil shortages or anything like that, but because of the oil situation in Texas. It's been a fairly serious problem recently, and I think it's time we had a discussion about it.

Once again, I'm calling on Texas Governor Mathew Gidley to take the necessary steps to ensure that Texas has an adequate supply of oil. Our state's economy depends on oil, and we cannot afford to risk running short of it.

To the best of my knowledge, there is no evidence that any of our oil companies are deliberately hoarding oil in order to drive up the price. However, there is a feeling among some people that the companies are not doing enough to ensure that oil is available when needed.

I believe that the state government should take a more active role in the oil industry. They should work with the companies to ensure that there is an adequate supply of oil available at all times.

This is not a new problem. Oil shortages have been an issue for many years, and it seems that nothing has changed. I believe that the state should be doing more to ensure that our oil supply is stable.

If you agree with me, please let me know by sending a letter to the governor. Let's work together to ensure that Texas has a reliable oil supply for the future.

McMillian a bit miffed by criticism of Cougars

Cotton Bowl officials are embarrassed, as well they should be, by the charges that their organization is inefficient and even corrupt. They are said to lack planning, to be busy only during the week of the game, and to have a social side. This is not true, and the officials are working hard to prove it.

The Cotton Bowl was once considered the greatest game in football. It was the site of many memorable games, including the 1941 Sugar Bowl and the 1942 Rose Bowl. But today, it is little more than a sideshow.

The officials are trying to change this. They are planning for the 1964 Cotton Bowl, which will be held on January 1. It is hoped that this will be a turning point for the game.

In the meantime, the officials are working hard to improve their organization. They are experimenting with new ideas, such as a pre-game show and a halftime show. They are also trying to attract more fans.

Despite their efforts, the officials are still criticized. But they are determined to prove that they can do a good job.

The Cotton Bowl is more than just a game. It is a tradition, a symbol of America's love of football. The officials are determined to keep it that way.

If you would like to get involved in the Cotton Bowl, please contact the officials at the address below.

Local law man reminisces

By Shirley Anderson

Panola County Sheriff Harry遏欧 has lived in Panola County since he was a young child. He is the son of the late John E.遏欧, a former Panola County Sheriff.

"My family has been in Panola County for generations," he said. "I grew up here, and I was fortunate enough to have a great influence from my father and other family members who were active in the community."

遏欧 began his law enforcement career in the 1960s, and he has served in various capacities throughout his career, including as a deputy, a captain, and finally as sheriff.

"I have had the privilege of working with some great people in this office," he said. "We have a dedicated group of deputies who work tirelessly to keep our community safe."

遏欧 has seen many changes in law enforcement over the years, but he believes that the most important thing is to always be honest and fair.

"I think the most important thing in law enforcement is to treat everyone with respect," he said. "We are here to serve and protect, and we should always do it with integrity."

遏欧 is proud of his family and his community, and he looks forward to continuing to serve in his role as sheriff for many years to come.

Deadwood News

By Lee Shinee

The federal government announced on Friday that it has decided to sell the historic Deadwood casino, the Black Hills' largest and oldest, to private investors.

"This is a historic moment for Deadwood," said Mayor John Smith. "The casino has been a cornerstone of our community for decades, and we are excited to see it continue to thrive in the hands of new owners."

The casino, which opened in 1982, has been a popular destination for tourists and local residents alike. It was recently named one of the top 10 casinos in the country by Wine Spectator magazine.

"We have a lot of history here," said Smith. "From the early days of gold mining to the present, this area has been shaped by the casino. We are proud to see it continue to be a part of our community."

The sale is expected to be completed by the end of the year, and new investors are expected to bring new investments and new opportunities for Deadwood.

Harris Chapel club members exchange gifts

The Harris Chapel club members gathered for a special occasion recently, exchanging gifts with each other.

"It's always a special day when we get together," said club president Mary Johnson. "We love to share gifts and memories with one another."

The club, which was founded in 1950, meets monthly to discuss various topics and share friendship.

"Our club is a special place," said Johnson. "We come together to support each other and to share our love of God."

Know Your Heritage

By Rev. J.J. Whalen

December 1884, an event took place in a small town that would have far-reaching implications for the future. George Washington Carver, a prominent African American scientist and agricultural leader, was born on a cotton farm in Diamond Grove, Missouri. His birthplace is now a national landmark, marking the beginning of a journey that would change the way people thought about the land and its potential.

Carver's early life was shrouded in poverty and struggle. As a young boy, he worked alongside his mother to clear the land, using only a hoe and a pickaxe. Despite these challenges, Carver's passion for learning was unquenchable. He attended a one-room schoolhouse near his home, where he learned the fundamentals of arithmetic, geography, and history.

Carver's dedication to education continued as he pursued higher education. He attended Tuskegee Institute, where he studied agriculture, botany, and chemistry. It was during this time that Carver developed a deep appreciation for the versatility of the peanut, a crop that was largely ignored at the time. His research on peanuts led to the development of over 300 products, including flour, oil, and candy, demonstrating the crop's potential for rural economic development.

Carver's work not only benefitted the agricultural community but also had a profound impact on the nation's food supply. His research on peanuts helped to diversify crops and reduce the nation's reliance on staple grains like corn and wheat. This innovation was particularly important during World War II, when Carver's work helped to feed soldiers and civilians alike.

Carver's legacy continues to inspire today. His dedication to education, sustainability, and innovation serves as a model for future generations. As we celebrate his birthday, let us remember the importance of perseverance, hard work, and a commitment to improving the lives of others.

Reynolds hosts Potpourri club

The Potpourri Club of Oakwood will meet at 1 p.m. on Thursday, December 6, at the Oakwood Church. This gathering is an opportunity to relax and enjoy each other's company in a warm and welcoming atmosphere.

Pastor Randy Longworth, who is a member of the club, invites all to attend. The club is open to anyone interested in joining. For more information or to register, please contact Pastor Longworth at 1-800-555-1212. All are welcome to attend.

Beckville gardeners a name officers

The Garden Club of Beckville, a group of enthusiasts dedicated to promoting gardening and horticulture, has elected new officers for the coming year. Mrs. Betty Davis, the current president, will continue to lead the group in its mission to enhance the beauty of the community through the art of gardening.

Altrusans consider scholarship

Altrusa International, a service organization that promotes educational and cultural advancements, is considering offering scholarships to local students. The selection process will be based on academic achievements, community involvement, and financial need.

Older people need seat belts, too

Many seniors rely on seat belts for safety, but few consider the importance of seat belt use for older adults. Older adults are at higher risk of injury in accidents if they are not properly restrained.

The Uphoosroom

As I mentioned in my previous column, the holidays are a time to give and receive. I often find myself rushing from one event to another, forgetting to take time for myself. This year, I decided to slow down and enjoy the season. One of the things I love about the holidays is spending time with family and friends.

The holidays are a time for reflection and gratitude. I am grateful for the people in my life and the opportunities I have had this year. I hope you take a moment to appreciate the good things in your life as well.

When a public service announcement is issued, it is important to offer support and resources. If you are facing a difficult situation, there are options available to help you through.

The Upvhoosroom is a place where we can share our hopes and dreams, and support one another during the holiday season.

The holidays are a time for joy and celebration, but they can also be a time of stress and overwhelming feelings. If you are feeling overwhelmed, please know that you are not alone. There are resources available to help you navigate the holiday season.

The Upvhoosroom is a space where we can come together and support one another during this time of year.

When you want to spoil someone...
