Lady Bulldogs blast Athens in league

By Mrs. South

Cleveland High,Wisconsin's, big fines is no extra headache. She's coming off her biggest win of the season. She had seven assists during the big rally in the third quarter and two more in overtime. That's six assists in her first 24 minutes. Cleveland's coach had said before the game that she was happy with her team's performance, and it showed in the final score, 78-66. Athens, on the other hand, was outplayed by Cleveland's defense and couldn't get the ball Estimates are 3-0 in the season, but it's not all smooth sailing for the Bulldogs. The team had a close game against Athens, but couldn't hold on in the fourth quarter. The Bulldogs need to work on their defense and teamwork in the upcoming games. In overtime, Athens was able to tie the game with a basket at the buzzer, but Cleveland made a free throw to take the lead back. Athens tried to make a comeback, but Cleveland's defense held strong and sealed the win. The Bulldogs are now 7-3 in the season. They have three more games left, and they need to keep their momentum going to make it to the playoffs. In this game, Athens was led by their star player, who scored 26 points. Cleveland had a balanced team, with five players scoring in double digits. The Bulldogs need to stay focused on their game plan and work together to win in their next game.

AN APPARENT INSULT BECOMES A BLESSING IN DISGUISE

Any of us who have had our feelings hurt by an implied or real insult have found that sometimes the real issue was something else entirely. It may have been a misunderstanding or a misinterpretation of our words or actions. In such cases, it is important to remain calm and understand that the real issue was not what was initially thought.

A recent example of this occurred when a local church invited a guest speaker who was known for his controversial views. Many members of the congregation were upset by the invitation, feeling that it was inappropriate for the church to host such a speaker. Some members expressed their concern to the church leaders, who then decided to cancel the event.

However, upon further investigation, it was discovered that the real issue was not the guest speaker's views, but rather the lack of communication within the congregation. Some members felt that they were not consulted or informed about the decision to invite the speaker, leading to the perception of an insult. By addressing the underlying issue of communication, the church was able to prevent further conflict and maintain a positive relationship with the congregation.

This example illustrates the importance of considering the true nature of an apparent insult. Often, the real issue is something else entirely, and by focusing on this, we can prevent unnecessary conflict and maintain a positive relationship with others.
Know Your Heritage

The story of our meetings is told by the preservationists and their enthusiasm for the heritage of our community. For today's success, we salute the contributions of the early settlers and their families who have lived and worked in this area. The history of the community is rich and varied, and it is our duty to preserve and protect it for future generations.

Carriage Chatter Box

By Debra Grissom

While on a recent trip to a local carriage museum, I was struck by the beauty and craftsmanship of the carriages. Each one told a story of its time, and I couldn't help but wonder about the people who built them. This got me thinking about the importance of preserving our local history and the role that museums play in educating the public.
