Adopt a grandparent initiated

If you're interested in adopting a grandparent who is in need of assistance, the "Adopt a Grandparent" program is a great opportunity. This initiative pairs seniors with younger volunteers to provide companionship and help with daily activities. Volunteers can assist with tasks such as grocery shopping, meal preparation, and transportation.

Some of the benefits of adopting a grandparent include:
- Reduced stress for the senior
- Increased socialization for the grandparent
- A sense of purpose for the volunteer

To participate in this program, interested volunteers must complete an application and undergo background checks. The program is open to volunteers of all ages and backgrounds.

Forest Fest celebrated at Lufkin in May

Lufkin, which celebrates its "Oil Festival of the Pecos" each year, is hosting its annual Forest Fest on May 15-17. The three-day event will feature a variety of activities, including a Native American arts and crafts fair, live music, and a children's area.

Other events during the three-day festival include a parade, a Shakespearean festival, and a local theater production. For more information, visit the Lufkin Parks and Recreation website or contact the Lufkin Chamber of Commerce at (936) 630-7000.

Gholston, Scaife promoted

Sylvia S. Gholston was promoted to assistant director of the Texas A&M Foundation in College Station. She most recently was director of development for the Coastal Bend Foundation of Texas A&M, a position she assumed in 2011. Prior to that, she served as director of development for the University of Texas at Austin's Cockrell School of Engineering.

Bill Scaife was promoted to director of development for the Texas A&M Foundation's office in Houston. He was most recently director of development for the University of Houston's College of Engineering.

Oil, gas discoveries increase

Texas oil and gas companies reported a 24% increase in production in April, according to the Railroad Commission. Companies in the Permian Basin, Eagle Ford, and Barnett Shale all contributed to the increase.

Inhaling a 14-year-old's dream of a horse or horse show, the junior and senior high school horse show at Copperas Cove High School last weekend was held in the school's, mall, with a showmanship contest for any horse that was willing to participate.

The event was sponsored by the Copperas Cove High School Showmanship Club, which has had a record high of 14-year-old riders, and by the Copperas Cove High School Academic Team, which sponsored the event.

The showmanship competition was held in the school's gym, where the school's athletic facilities are located. The young horse was selected from a group of eight horses that were displayed at the show.

The competition was open to any horse that was willing to participate, and the horses were judged on their ability to perform. The horses were judged on their ability to follow commands, their ability to move in a straight line, and their ability to react to commands.
