Caddo mounds leave mystery

By Craig G. B., student of 10 years at South College East, and former member of the History Department. Most of these are using what are known as "Caddo" mounds, which were built by these ancient people who lived in the area.

The mounds are made of dirt and are shaped like pyramids. They were built by the Caddo people who lived in the area from about 1200 AD to 1541 AD.

Although the exact purpose of the mounds is unknown, it is believed that they were used for ceremonial purposes. Some believe they were used as burial sites, while others think they were used for religious rituals.

The Caddo people were a group of Native Americans who lived in the southeastern United States. They were known for their distinctive mound-building rituals and their connection with nature.

The mounds are a reminder of the rich history of the Caddo people and their culture.

Harkriders donate prints

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Harkrid, both former residents of Panola County, donated prints to the Panola College Art Center. The prints were acquired by Panola College during the 1980s. The prints were created by local artist Jacob Whiddon. The prints were donated to the Art Center in honor of the centennial celebration of the Panola College.

Card of thanks

Thanks to everyone who made the centennial celebration a success. We are grateful for all the support and generosity.

Duncan presented pin at retirees’ meeting

By Mrs. Grey Hunt

The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) invited fugitive Duncan to participate in its 1986 meeting with a special dinner honoring his accomplishments in the field of social justice. Duncan, who has always been a staunch advocate for the disabled and the elderly, was presented with a pin by the association in recognition of his contributions.

In his acceptance speech, Duncan expressed his gratitude for the recognition, saying, “I am deeply grateful for the honor bestowed upon me. It is an honor that I do not take lightly, and it is a reminder of the importance of standing up for what is right.”

The evening concluded with a gala dinner, where Duncan enjoyed a candlelit meal with fellow attendees and members of the AARP.

Panola County Roots

By Robbie Sultine

When I think of Panola County, I often think of the rich history and culture that has shaped the region. The county is home to a number of historic sites, including the Calhoun County Courthouse and the Panola County Jail, both of which date back to the mid-19th century.

Panola County is also known for its agricultural heritage, with cotton, soybeans, and peanuts being key crops in the area. The county has a long tradition of supporting the local farming community, and many of its residents still rely on agriculture as their primary source of income.

Tenth book of poems makes local poet happy

Local poet Harman Gatos signed copies of his new collection, "Dancing Shoes," last week at the Panola County Library. The collection, Gatos’ tenth book, was released to critical acclaim, with reviewers praising the poet’s ability to capture the essence of the human experience through his words.

Gatos, who has been publishing poems for over 30 years, has always been known for his ability to connect with his readers through his work. "Dancing Shoes" is no exception, with themes of love, loss, and the complexities of life explored in a way that is both relatable and profound.

Fun events planned by Tatum Heritage House

The Tatum Heritage House is hosting a series of events this summer, including a summer garden party on June 24th and a fall festival on October 15th. The house, which dates back to the 1800s, is a popular destination for visitors to the area, and these events are expected to draw a large crowd.

Spaghetti supper to be held this month

The Panola Watchman (Social Scene)

November 15, 1986

By Mike McCollum

As the holiday season approaches, the Panola County Historical Society is planning to host a spaghetti supper on November 24th. The event is expected to be a popular gathering, with attendees invited to enjoy spaghetti, bread, and drinks while learning about the history of Panola County.

The proceeds from the spaghetti supper will go towards funding the society’s various programs and initiatives, including the ongoing restoration of the Panola County Courthouse. The event is open to the public, and tickets are available for purchase at the Historical Society’s offices.

Just Too Tired

This poetry collection by local writer Jennifer Whitaker is now available at all local bookstores. The collection is a poignant exploration of the struggles and triumphs of modern life, with themes of love, loss, and the challenges of the 21st century.

The collection includes a foreword by the author, as well as a dedication to her late grandmother, who inspired her to write in the first place. "Just Too Tired" is a must-read for anyone looking for a thought-provoking and emotionally resonant collection of poems.

Mexican holiday enjoyed

By Mike McCollum

As the Christmas season approaches, many Panola County residents are looking forward to celebrating the holiday with friends and family. This year, the festive spirit was captured in a beautiful Christmas photo shoot, which was organized by the Panola County Chamber of Commerce.

The photo shoot took place at the historic Panola County Courthouse, with many of the county’s landmarks serving as a backdrop. The shoot was a huge success, with many of the participants sharing their experiences on social media.

Bayou De Valls was a top destination for tourists during the holiday season, with many visitors enjoying the picturesque scenery and the many restaurants offering special holiday menus.

New PGH board members take oaths of office Thursday

Lord and Turtle Hill Rd had the honor of being in attendance during the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Board of Lumber and Wood Products, held on Thursday, January 19th, 1986. The Board was convened in the main meeting room of the Pennsylvania State Capitol, Harrisburg, Pa. The meeting was called to order by President Edward M. Bell, who read the roll of members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Following the approval of the minutes, President Bell conducted the meeting. The Board considered and acted upon the following matters:}

- The Board discussed the current status of the Pennsylvania Board of Lumber and Wood Products and noted the need for increased funding for the Board's programs. The Board agreed to request increased funding for the next fiscal year.
- The Board reviewed the Board's fiscal year budget and approved the budget for the upcoming fiscal year.
- The Board considered and approved a new policy on the use of board resources for charitable and community organizations. The policy will go into effect immediately.

The Board adjourned at 7:30 p.m. and will meet next regular meeting on Thursday, February 16th, 1986.
