Citizens’ space comments draw concerned reader’s eye

In Sansar, I refer to the Panola County Post and through its comments, the history of the same shall be considered. I have a particular interest in the issue of space exploration. I was amazed at the majority of citizens were negative about the space program. I think we are a nation of success and space is an opportunity for us to lead the world. The only problem is that we should not spend so much money on this. The cost is astronomical. Fossil fuels are also a problem. I believe we should consider to reduce the cost and invest more in the economy. Please think about the future.

Last week not good for White

By Joelle Williams

Tourist Press Reporter

It was a difficult week for White. White was seen looking depressed last week, which led some to speculate about the possibility of a family problem. White, who is known for his optimism, was seen wearing a somber expression as he walked down the street.

In addition to the emotional toll, White also faced challenges in his professional life. His latest project, a new line of shoes, was met with mixed reviews. Some praised the design, while others found it lacking in quality.

However, White remains committed to his work and his goal of bringing joy to the world through his footwear. He continues to work tirelessly to perfect his designs and ensure the highest quality for his customers.

Chuck's Country

By Chuck Seville

Since it seems no one wants to visit the Beach and keep us laughing and making the world a better place, I decided to write about the poor, sad soul who's about to be dined and quartered by a bunch of snobs. It's not every day we get to witness a truly tragic event. Our story begins when the Beach decided to host a dinner for some celebrities. Of course, we all know who these people are, but let's pretend we don't, shall we?

When the news broke that the Beach was hosting a dinner for some celebrities, the community was abuzz. The invitees included various actors, musicians, and other well-known figures. The event was expected to be a grand affair, with fancy table settings, fine wine, and delicious cuisine.

At the heart of the festivities was the famous beachfront restaurant, which had been transformed into a formal dining hall. The guests were seated at long tables, dressed in their finest attire. The atmosphere was one of excitement and anticipation as everyone eagerly waited for the evening to begin.

For those who were not fortunate enough to be invited, there was always the option of watching the event live on social media or in the local papers. After all, it's not every day we get to witness a truly tragic event. Our story begins when the Beach decided to host a dinner for some celebrities. Of course, we all know who these people are, but let's pretend we don't, shall we?

At the heart of the festivities was the famous beachfront restaurant, which had been transformed into a formal dining hall. The guests were seated at long tables, dressed in their finest attire. The atmosphere was one of excitement and anticipation as everyone eagerly waited for the evening to begin.

But then, as fate would have it, things took a turn for the worse. One of the guests, a famous musician, began to display signs of distress. The musician, who was known for his persona, suddenly revealed that he was struggling with addiction. The guest was not alone; many others in attendance were also grappling with their own personal demons.

With the news of the musician's struggle, the mood of the evening shifted. Instead of a joyous celebration, it became a time of support and understanding. The guests, recognizing the gravity of the situation, came together to offer encouragement and to share their own stories of overcoming adversity.

The night ended with a hopeful note. Despite the challenges faced by the guests, there was a sense of unity and hope that resonated throughout the event. As the guests left the dining hall, it became clear that the night was not just about the food and the drinks, but about the power of support and the strength of community.

Apple's ploy leaves Rangers defeated

Revised, rejuvenated

PJC costs Kilgore first

In the coach's corner

KILGORE - The Rangers, who are the defending state champs in Class 4A, will play host to Panola tonight in a non-district game at 7:30. Panola junior Aaron Bridges made a three-pointer last night to beat Kilgore, 58-55. The Jackets are 13-3 and Kilgore is 16-2. Panola's Bridges scored 24 of his team's 32 points in the second half.

Coach at work

The Kilgore Rangers are coming off a close 66-63 victory over Panola last night. They are ready for another tough game against the Pancos.

Lady Rangers too much for helpless Panola gals

By Bill Gann
Sports Writer
PANOLA - Perhaps embarrassed more than flabbergasted by the turmoil that followed the final section of the game, the Lady Rangers quickly assessed the situation.
And they were not happy.
Kilgore coach Cheryl Bennington called off her initial post-game sentiments when she realized the Lady Rangers actually were going to be facing a new foe in the next district game, and that foe was not going to be Panola.
"I was afraid we'd get beat,
" she said.
"But we didn't.
Which is good news for the Lady Rangers (17-4, 7-0). But it's bad news for Panola (12-8, 2-5), which was handily beaten by the Lady Rangers in Tuesday's victory, 96-78.
"I guess we made some defense stops when we needed them," said Panola coach Bill Rittmeyer.
Panola was in cold storage at the outset of the game, as a result of serious turnover problems, which happened to be the signature of the Lady Rangers on Tuesday night.
"I thought we were a little bit too foul-conscious," Rittmeyer said.
"We gave them too many free roads.
"We probably fouled them a little too early.
"We were in foul trouble the first team, and that really hurt us.
"The game was pretty much over by the end of the third quarter.

PANOLA PEOPLE
Keeps Country Store atmosphere alive
Son Develin is community fixture

By Mike Adams
The log cabin in the country is very different from the one in the city. It's a bit more rustic and cozy, with a warm, inviting feeling that makes you want to stay a little longer. But there's something about the quietness and simplicity that appeals to quite a few people.

Son Develin is one of those people.
For him, the country store is more than just a place to buy groceries.
It's a part of his identity, a reminder of his roots and a connection to the past.

Son Develin is the son of the initial store owner, who opened the store back in 1945. The store has been a fixture in the community ever since, and Son Develin has been there almost every day of his life.

The store has changed over the years, but some things remain the same. The country store still provides a sense of community, supporting local farmers and producers.

Son Develin is a community fixture, always ready to lend a hand or offer advice to those in need. He's a true example of how the country store can be a vital part of a community.

In conclusion, the country store is not just a place to do business.
It's a part of the fabric of the community, providing a sense of attachment and belonging.

Drug dog sniffs dope, stays friendly

By Mike Adams
Drug sniffs are becoming more common in schools these days.

The drug dog is trained to sniff out drugs and is very accurate in doing so. The dog will bark or give some other signal when it finds drugs.

At a school in the area, the drug dog was brought in to sniff out drugs in the locker rooms. The students were unaware of the drug dog's presence, and they were not alarmed when they saw the dog.

The dog was friendly and approachable, and it didn't seem to be bothered by the students. The students were unaware of the drug dog's
presence, and they were not alarmed when they saw the
dog.

The drug dog was very disciplined and well-behaved.
It didn't show any signs of aggression or fear. It was a perfect example of how a friendly drug dog can be used in schools.

You don't have to be in office to inaugurate a tax cut.

By Jerry Bunnman

As a member of Congress, I have been working hard to reduce the burden of taxes on American families. I have introduced legislation that would provide tax relief to middle-class families. The legislation has been well-received and is expected to pass soon.

The legislation includes a number of provisions designed to benefit American families. It would provide a tax credit for families with children, a deduction for home purchases, and a reduction in the capital gains rate. The legislation would also provide a tax break for seniors, who would be allowed to keep more of their retirement savings.

The legislation has been supported by a wide range of organizations and individuals, including the American Federation of Teachers, the National Alliance on Mental Illness, and the League of Women Voters.

The legislation is supported by a broad coalition of politicians, including both Republicans and Democrats. It is expected to pass the House and be signed into law by the end of the year.

You can find out more about the legislation and how to support it by visiting my website at www.jerrymbunnman.com.
