City seeks legal action

By Panola Watchman

The city council has filed a lawsuit in federal court seeking to vacate and enjoin a property owner from continuing to allow water to seep onto public streets and too-low lying areas on the property. The city claims that the owner's actions have caused erosion and damage to the streets and surrounding areas. The city has been trying to negotiate a settlement with the owner, but has been unsuccessful. The lawsuit seeks to force the owner to take action to prevent further damage. The city council hopes that this legal action will be a last resort to resolve the issue.

Governor may be avoiding a debate

By STANLEY WALTERS

Governor Mark White's refusal to debate Texas Sen. Jeff Flanagan has some political observers wondering if the governor is trying to avoid criticism that Flanagan's favorable showing in the recent Texas Survey of Public Opinion would generate.

"White's refusal to debate Flanagan might be seen as an attempt to avoid a potential loss of support," said Dr. Robert J. Thomas, political science professor at Texas Tech University. "It's a common tactic in politics to avoid debates that could be damaging to one's reputation." Thomas added that the governor's decision could be more about protecting his image than about policy issues.

Only two weeks ago, White was not only a leading candidate for the Republican nomination in Texas but also a front runner in the race for the presidency. However, his poll numbers have dropped significantly since then, and some political analysts believe that he may be losing momentum due to his refusal to participate in debates.

McLemore, a veteran of many debates, said that White's decision to not participate in the debate could be seen as a lack of confidence in his campaign. "If White were confident in his campaign, he would be more willing to face the scrutiny of a debate," McLemore said.

Publicly, White has been criticized for his lack of involvement in the campaign trail, and some believe that his refusal to participate in debates is a reflection of this lack of involvement.

Law protects buyer from home solicitors

By LINDA GARCIA

The law protects homeowners from unwanted solicitations by regulating the methods and times for solicitation of homes. The purpose of this law is to prevent the harassment of homeowners and to reduce the number of solicitations at their homes.

The law requires that solicitations must be done during reasonable hours, and the homeowner must be given the opportunity to refuse the solicitation. This law applies to all solicitors, including Telemarketers, who are not allowed to make unsolicited calls to homes.

The law also requires that solicitors must provide the homeowner with a copy of their solicitation list and a statement of their purpose.

Federal cuts hurt commission

The city of Carthage is feeling the sting of cuts to the federal housing commission. The city had to lay off two employees, including the code enforcement officer and the city's code enforcement supervisor. These cuts have led to a decrease in the city's ability to enforce building codes and regulations.

David Weaver, the city's code enforcement officer, said he has been working extra hours to keep up with the demand. "I'm doing everything I can to keep up," he said. "But with the cuts, it's just not enough."

Panza County Roots

Very few of the official public records have been published in any form since the county was established. This lack of documentation makes it difficult for historians to trace the ancestry of many families. Galloway News

By Mrs. Clos Baker

I had a long chat with my daughter,opies, on Friday afternoon. She was over for a visit, and we had a wonderful time catching up. We talked about her new job, her studies, and her plans for the future. She mentioned she was planning to go to graduate school next year. I told her how proud I was of her and how much I look forward to seeing where her studies take her.

TAXES

In June of 1984, the Texas State Legislature passed the Property Tax Reform Initiative, known as Proposition 2, which aimed to provide increased property tax relief for homeowners. The initiative was later amended by Proposition 3 in 1997. The Texas Real Estate Commission (TREC) encourages all property owners to familiarize themselves with the tax laws that apply to their property. TREC provides resources and tools to help property owners understand and navigate the property tax process.
