Strictly Personal

By DOROTHY NEVILLE

For the third week in a row, a couple of folks I know have been busy planning their annual family get-together. I must say, it's been quite a relief to see them together again after months of isolation. The children have been thrilled to have their grandparents around again, but I must admit, I've been a little bit vexed with them. The noise they make, the way they knock each other down, and the way they keep pushing their buggies in the same direction is simply intolerable.

I'm not one to exaggerate, but I must say, the noise has been so loud that I've been having trouble concentrating on my work. I've tried everything to get them to be quiet, but it's been to no avail. I've even tried offering them a treat, but they just keep shouting and yelling. It's been a real challenge to keep them quiet, but I'm determined to do it. I've even tried putting earplugs in their ears, but they just keep pulling them out. It's been a real trial, but I'm determined to do it.

I must say, I've been quite impressed with the way they have been behaving. They have been quite cooperative, and I must say, I'm quite proud of them. I've been quite impressed with the way they have been behaving, and I must say, I'm quite proud of them. Pannell clowns to fight drugs

BY DOUGIE NIEVILLE

George Pannell does not do anything without a plan.
On the day in school, he was argumenting with a teacher. "Why are you causing a ruckus?" asked the teacher. Pannell, responding to his teacher, looked up from the arguing and said, "I am not causing a ruckus. I am arguing with you." The teacher was taken aback by the unexpected retort.

Pannell is a remarkable example of what one can achieve through planning and strategy. His approach to life is one of total effectiveness, making the efforts of others look tedious and inefficient.

Pannell, who is noted for his ability to fight drugs, will be appearing at the National Clown Congress in Dallas. His performance will be a highlight of the conference, and is expected to draw a large audience.

Pannell was first noticed in the clowning world when he appeared on the local television show "Clown Circus." His talent was discovered by a talent scout who recognized his potential and offered him a contract. Pannell immediately jumped at the opportunity and began his clowning career.

Since then, Pannell has won numerous awards for his clowning skills. He has performed at numerous events, including the US Clown Congress, the International Clown Festival, and several local events.

Pannell's unique style has set him apart from other clowns, and he is considered one of the most innovative and entertaining clowns today. His ability to combine physical comedy with thought-provoking messages has earned him a place in the clowning hall of fame.

Pannell's performance at the National Clown Congress will undoubtedly be a memorable event for all who attend.

Young Beckville couple make country music their dream

When Vicki and Larry Sibley were young, their dreams were of becoming country music stars. They were in love with the genre, and 渴望ed to share their passion with the world.

The two met in high school, and soon became inseparable.
Their love for country music only grew stronger after they attended a concert by their favorite band, the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band.

They decided to take their dreams seriously and pursue a career in country music. They began writing their own songs and practicing their singing and playing skills.

After a few years of hard work, they finally got a break. They were invited to perform at a local country music festival.
Their performance was a success, and they were offered a record deal.

They released their first album, "The Love of a Country Man," which became an instant success. The album featured a mix of original songs and covers, each showcasing their unique sound.

Their music soon gained popularity, and they were featured on several television shows and radio stations. Their dedication and hard work paid off, and they became successful country music artists.

Despite their success, Vicki and Larry remained humble and grateful for their opportunities. They continued to write and perform, inspiring others to follow their dreams.

Today, Vicki and Larry are living their dream, and they continue to entertain audiences with their music. They remind us that with
dedication and hard work, dreams can become a everyday reality.

Panola hospital administrator rehired

The administrator who was Tom management contract with the Panola County Memorial Hospital has been rehired.

The hospital, which is owned by the city of Carthage, was facing financial difficulties when the administrator was fired in 2009. The city said at the time that the administrator had not made public the financial management plan, which included raising rates for hospital services.

The hospital said it had changed its management plan since the administrator was fired, and that the new administrator had been hired to help improve the hospital's financial situation.

The administrator, who had previously worked for the hospital, was fired in 2009 after a disagreement over the hospital's financial management. The hospital's board of directors then hired a new administrator, who was later fired after a similar disagreement.

The hospital had been struggling financially in recent years, and had been forced to lay off several employees and reduce its services. The new administrator is expected to help improve the hospital's financial situation and ensure that it can continue to provide quality care to its patients.
