Despite a 10 percent increase in the U.S. acreage that can be grown for beans, prices are expected to remain stable for the time being. The increase is due to a shift in the market from dried beans to fresh beans, which are more expensive.

PERSPECTIVES

Economy must be strengthened

Texas must think, act like a nation

By Jim Hightower
The Texas Aquiculturist

Texas Secretary of State Tom Craddick recently announced that the state's gross domestic product (GDP) reached $464 billion in 2022, marking an 11.9% increase from the previous year. This is a significant achievement, and it is a testament to the resilience and ingenuity of the Texas economy.

However, there is still work to be done. The state must continue to focus on creating a business-friendly environment that encourages growth and innovation. This means taking a comprehensive approach to economic development and infrastructure.

Texas must also focus on education and workforce development. The state must ensure that its citizens have the skills and knowledge they need to succeed in the modern economy. This means investing in K-12 education, higher education, and career training programs.

In conclusion, Texas must think like a nation and act like one. The state must work together to create a strong, prosperous economy that benefits all citizens.

Fall fertilizing helps promote good turfgrass in the spring

Fall fertilizing helps promote good turfgrass in the spring. Fall fertilizing is the practice of applying fertilizer to grass lawns and landscapes during the fall season. This is done to provide nutrients that will support the growth and development of the turfgrass during the winter months. The fertilizer is applied to the soil, which is then covered with mulch or irrigation to help retain moisture and nutrients. This process helps to ensure that the turfgrass has the necessary nutrients to grow during the winter months, which leads to a healthier and more vibrant turf in the spring.

Free assistance offered by ASCS

ASCs offers free assistance to farmers and landowners through their conservation programs. These programs provide technical and financial assistance to help farmers and landowners implement conservation practices that protect the environment and conserve natural resources. Some of the programs offered by ASCs include:

- Watershed Management Program: Provides financial and technical assistance to help farmers and landowners implement conservation practices that protect water quality and improve soil health.
- Erosion and Sediment Control Program: Provides financial and technical assistance to help farmers and landowners reduce soil erosion and sedimentation.
- Natural Resource Conservation Program: Provides financial and technical assistance to help farmers and landowners implement conservation practices that protect renewable natural resources.

Fall Season Lawn Care Tips

1. Fertilize: Apply a balanced fertilizer high in phosphorus and potassium to promote healthy growth and root development.
2. Mow: Mow the grass at a lower height in the fall to encourage dense growth and improve disease resistance.
3. Mulch: Apply mulch to help retain moisture and nutrients in the soil.
4. Irrigate: Irrigate the lawn to help distribute water to the roots and prevent water from running off the soil.

Fall Fertilization Benefits

- Improved Nutrient Uptake: Fall fertilization helps to increase the availability of nutrients in the soil, which can improve soil structure and root development.
- Increased Disease Resistance: A healthy lawn with proper nutrient levels is less susceptible to disease and pests.
- Better Winter Survival: Adequate nutrients in the soil during the fall can improve the winter-hardiness of the lawn, helping to keep it green and healthy throughout the winter.
Agriculture

Farmers, ranchers benefit from tax reform proposal

COLLEGE STATION—Most farmers and ranchers will likely benefit from the tax reform proposal, according to Clay Estes, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The proposal, which is focused on improving the tax system for agriculture and rural communities, would provide numerous benefits to farmers and ranchers. The new plan would simplify the tax code, reduce taxes, and provide more direct support to farmers and ranchers. The proposal would also provide more flexibility for farmers and ranchers to make decisions that are best for their businesses.

Soil removes impurities

Wastewater from citrus, fruit processing plants and livestock feeding operations can be treated by the proposed system. This would help to reduce the amount of water that is treated and reused, which would help to reduce the cost of water treatment and increase the efficiency of water usage. The proposed system would also provide a more reliable and consistent source of water for the community.

Free technical services

The Texas A&M University System, through its Texas AgriLife Research and Extension Service, will provide free technical services to farmers and ranchers. These services will include assistance with crop and livestock management, as well as technical support for new technologies and practices. The services will be provided by experts in the fields of agriculture, horticulture, and animal science. The services will be available to all farmers and ranchers in the state, regardless of their location or size of operation.

SOS helps landowners construct stock ponds

Local farmers and ranchers volunteered to help construct stock ponds on their properties as part of the Stock Pond Stewardship Project. The project was funded through a grant from the South Central Conservation District. The stock ponds will serve as water sources for wildlife and livestock, as well as improve the local ecosystem. The project is being coordinated by the Texas A&M University System, through its Texas AgriLife Research and Extension Service.

Personal taste is deciding factor

Simple, elegant china choice of today's brides

BY DOROTHY NELLE

Debbie's china is pink and white. Jane's is blue and white. Carolyn's is silver and gold. And what are Sally's colors? She has a special china pattern that she designed just for her wedding.

Personal taste is the deciding factor when choosing a china pattern for a wedding. Some brides like the classic white-on-white look, while others prefer more colorful patterns. But whatever the choice, it's important to select a pattern that reflects the couple's personality and style.

Some brides still use two sets

The use of two sets of china is still prevalent among many brides today. This allows the couple to use one set for everyday dining and the other for special occasions or when guests are entertaining. However, some couples prefer to use only one set of china and rotate it through the seasons.

Some patterns are timeless

While new patterns are constantly being introduced, some traditional patterns such as gold-rimmed and silver-rimmed pieces continue to be popular. These patterns add a touch of elegance and sophistication to any table setting.

 imitation gold and silver

Another popular trend in china today is the use of imitation gold and silver. These patterns feature metallic accents that add a touch of luxury and glamour to the table setting.

Fall brings cooler weather, which can be challenging for those with arthritis or other pain conditions. The Arthritis Foundation recommends taking steps to manage pain and improve mobility. These tips can help:

1. Stay active: Regular exercise can help relieve pain and improve mobility. Choose low-impact activities like walking or swimming.
2. Wear supportive shoes: Choose shoes with good arch support and cushioned soles to reduce joint impact.
3. Use assistive devices: Consider using assistive devices like walkers or canes to help maintain balance and reduce joint strain.
4. Take pain medication: If necessary, take pain medication as prescribed by your doctor. Consult with your healthcare provider before making any changes to your medication regimen.

Glassed in — Carthage, running back George Hamilton, was tackled by a couple of Longview defenders in the third quarter of the game. He quickly rolled over the pile and kept running forward. He was tackled by the Carthage defense, but managed to gain some yardage.

With two minutes left in the fourth quarter, Carthage held the ball on their own 25-yard line. Longview quarterback David Taylor tried to pass the ball to a teammate, but the Carthage defense was too strong. The ball was intercepted by Carthage safety John Davis, who returned it to the Longview 4-yard line. Carthage scored a touchdown on the next play to take a 13-0 lead.

The game was played at Carthage High School's Arthur Field. The crowd was excited and loud, cheering for both teams. The game was a hard-fought battle, with both teams showing great defensive skills.

Carthage head coach Mike Williams said, "Our defense played great tonight. We were able to stop Longview's offense and force turnovers. We're excited to see how we play in our next game."
