Dogs earn 13-0 win over Bears

By TED LACO

GALVA/WHITE — Cause for celebration Monday night in Galva was a 6-0 victory for West Central over the Galva-Buckeye-Bucklin Bears.

It wasn’t until late in the game that the Bears finally scored, and only after failing to score on their first two series. The Bears were dominated throughout the game, and West Central’s defense held them scoreless.

West Central took the lead early in the first quarter when they scored a goal on a penalty shot. The Bears were unable to score in the second quarter, despite several opportunities. In the third quarter, West Central added two more goals to extend their lead to 6-0.

The Bears were unable to score in the fourth quarter, and West Central held on to win the game 6-0. The defense was strong throughout the game, and the team played well together.

West Central is now 3-1 on the season, and they will look to continue their winning streak in their next game. The Bears, on the other hand, are struggling and will need to improve their defense if they hope to compete in the upcoming games.

Local industrialists elected by Panola National Bank

Panola National Bank President Robert T. Blake has announced the election of three local industrialists as advisory directors.

Elected at a board of directors meeting Tuesday were Jim Goff, owner of Goff Motors; Dr. William Abbott, president of Allied Motors; and Dr. John Nance, president of Panola National Bank.

Goff, who has been active in the community for many years, is a respected businessman and has a long history of involvement in local affairs. Dr. Abbott is well known for his contributions to the medical community and has been a leader in the Panola area for several years. Dr. Nance brings a wealth of experience and knowledge to the bank's board, having served in various capacities over the years.

These additions are expected to bring a new perspective and energy to the bank's operations, and will be invaluable in ensuring the continued growth and success of Panola National Bank.

Mona Logan's life reads like plot of great American novel

By SORCHDA HURLEY

Last Wednesday, an attractive young woman with wavy brown hair and a gentle smile, spent a good part of the day doing something most of us can only dream of doing: she was laughing and talking to her husband.

The Logan family has been living in Kansas for over a decade, and Mona Logan has never been happier. She and her husband, John, have three children: ages 5, 8, and 10. And they live in a cozy cottage in the middle of nowhere.

The Logan family has been living in Kansas for over a decade, and Mona Logan has never been happier. She and her husband, John, have three children: ages 5, 8, and 10. And they live in a cozy cottage in the middle of nowhere.

Yet it was not always easy.

In Topeka, John was an accountant for one of the biggest law firms in the state. Mona was a stay-at-home mom, spending her days baking cookies and reading books to her children. It was a life they both loved, but it was also a life that left them feeling unfulfilled.

Then, one day, the Logans heard about a small town in Kansas that was looking for a new, creative director for its annual summer festival. John and Mona decided to apply, and to their surprise, they got the job.

For the next four years, they lived in a small community, where they both worked hard to make it a thriving cultural center. They had one child, and John and Mona spent their evenings together, watching the stars and planning their next project.

But then, tragedy struck.

One day, John collapsed during a festival rehearsal and passed away. Mona was devastated, but she knew she had to keep going.

She took over the festival, and under her leadership, it became one of the most successful in the state. John's memory lived on through the festival, which is now known as the "John Logan Memorial Festival."

And so, the Logans continued on, living their lives in Kansas, where they both found happiness and fulfillment.

"I knew I was going to die tomorrow, there was no change in Maine I would like to see. I would like to see the Logans in the woods in the fall, and the lapidary in bloom in the spring under the full moon." - Mona Logan

Mona Logan and John Logan's love story is a testament to the power of love and resilience. It is a story that will inspire generations to come.

Mona Logan shoots plaque at筛查ered workshop

Mona Logan, a renowned lapidary and artist, was recently honored at a plaque inscription workshop at Shrewsbury High School. The plaque, inscribed with the words "Mona Logan: A Celebration of Art," was unveiled during a ceremony attended by family, friends, and community members.

"Mona has been a beloved member of our community for many years," said Principal John Smith. "Her art has touched the lives of countless people, and we are honored to have her here today.""

Book of Common Prayer Rite Used
Priest formally installed as vicar of St. John’s

BY DOROTHY NOLLE

At last, the long-anticipated ceremony was held in St. John’s Parish on Sunday, November 21, 1988. The Rev. Austin T. Cookies, Jr., rector of St. John’s Parish, officiated at the installation of the Rev. Robert Z. Smith, who had been called to the parish by the Vestry some months earlier. The service was held in the Episcopal Church on Lyndale Avenue and was attended by many parishioners as well as friends and family of the Rev. Smith.

The service began with a procession in which the clergy present were led by the Rev. Cookies, followed by the Rev. Smith and his family. The service included the laying on of hands, the reading of the charge, and the presentation of the Book of Common Prayer. The service concluded with a reception in the parish hall, where refreshments were served.

The installation of the Rev. Smith marks a new chapter in the history of St. John’s Parish, and the church community looks forward to his leadership and ministry.

Three little scene stealers

Grace notes

Panaola County choirs will join Sunday for afternoon of close gospel harmony

An afternoon of gospel singing will be held at the First Baptist Church of Cartagena, located at 515 E. Main St., on Sunday, December 5, at 3 p.m. The program features singing from the First Baptist Church choir, the Oakwood Baptist Church choir, and the Cartagena Baptist Church choir. The event is free and open to the public.

The Reverend Mike Daniel, pastor of First Baptist Church, Cartagena, said, “We are thrilled to host this event, as it is an opportunity for us to share the message of Jesus Christ with our community.”

The program will include a variety of Gospel favorites, including “How Great Thou Art,” “Amazing Grace,” and “Great Is Thy Faithfulness.” The choirs will also perform a rousing rendition of “Amen,” which will be sung by the entire congregation.

The event is open to the public and there is no admission fee. Refreshments will be served following the program.

For more information, please contact the Reverend Mike Daniel at 706-523-1569 or the First Baptist Church of Cartagena at 706-523-1569.

According to what I have heard, it is time to turn our backs on Dallas and head for Boston to learn why they didn't get 'em with the same set of arms this time. I believe we should all work on the line of thinking that if they didn't get 'em then we can get 'em with the same set of arms. We must work on the idea that if they didn't get 'em then we can get 'em with the same set of arms. Lark of the Border Part of state's history

When times are hard, music can help ease the pain. As the long, cold winter sets in, many people look to music for comfort and relaxation. In some cases, music can help people feel connected to their past and to the people of the past. This is especially true in the case of Lark's Border, a region located in the northern part of Texas and southern part of Oklahoma. Lark's Border is known for its rich musical heritage, with many local musicians and bands performing throughout the region. The area is rich in history and culture, with a strong connection to the past and to the people who have come before them. In this article, we will explore the history of Lark's Border and the role that music has played in the region. We will also examine the various ways in which music has helped to shape the identity of the people of Lark's Border. Finally, we will look at some of the current musical trends and how they are influencing the future of the region. The history of Lark's Border is one of the many stories that make up the rich tapestry of American culture and history. Music has played a vital role in shaping the identity of the people of Lark's Border, and it continues to be an important part of their lives today. Whether it's in the form of local festivals, community events, or simply a night out at the local bar, music is always a part of the scene in Lark's Border.

AARP members enjoy luncheon

By Mrs. Dorothy Goodwin

AARP members at Panola County chapter enjoyed a luncheon recently. The event took place at the Panola County Shrine Club. The luncheon was a great opportunity for members to socialize and enjoy a meal together. The AARP (American Association of Retired Persons) is a nonprofit organization that provides services and support to older adults, including educational programs, health and wellness services, and advocacy efforts. The chapter in Panola County is one of many across the country, and it serves a diverse group of members. The luncheon was a chance for members to connect with one another and to learn more about the services offered by the AARP. It was a great opportunity for members to enjoy a meal together and to socialize with one another. The chapter is committed to providing services and support to older adults in the community, and it looks forward to continuing to offer events and programs that meet the needs of its members.

Teacher evaluations cause policy change

A new state law requires school districts to conduct frequent, comprehensive evaluations of teachers as a way to identify underperforming teachers and to ensure that schools are providing the best possible instruction to students. The law, which was passed by the Legislature in 2013, requires districts to conduct annual evaluations of all teachers, including those who have been rated as effective, average, or ineffective in previous years. The law also requires districts to conduct periodic, sometimes monthly, evaluations of teachers who have been rated as ineffective.

The law is part of a broader effort by the state to improve the quality of education in Texas, which has one of the lowest rates of student achievement in the country. The law is also intended to address concerns about the quality of education in some districts, where teachers have been rated as ineffective but have not been removed from the classroom.

The new law is expected to have a significant impact on the way teachers are evaluated in Texas. The law requires districts to conduct evaluations that are based on a variety of factors, including student performance, teacher attendance, and other indicators of teacher performance. The law also requires districts to provide teachers with feedback about their evaluations, and to allow teachers to appeal the results of their evaluations.
