Johnson's imprint on life remains indelible

A Texas President:

Johnson's imprint on life remains indelible. He was a man of great vision and determination who left a lasting legacy on the world. He was a leader who understood the importance of education and saw the need for a stronger nation. Johnson was a man who believed in the power of the people and the potential they had to create a better future. He was a man who fought for what he believed in and never gave up. His impact on the world will be felt for generations to come.

Congress to address problem

Imports pose severe impact

By Anthony Harrigan

Imports are a problem that Congress must address. The United States must take steps to protect our domestic industries and ensure that our products are not being undercut by foreign competition. It is time for Congress to act and pass legislation that will help our economy. We must support our domestic industries and ensure that our products are not being undersold. It is time for Congress to take action and pass legislation that will help our economy.

Soviets not ready to scrap weapons

By William H. Hawkins

The Soviets are not ready to scrap their nuclear weapons. They are still a key component of their military strategy and they will not be easily dismantled. The United States must remain vigilant and continue to work towards a nuclear arms reduction treaty. The United States must remain committed to global security and work towards a world without nuclear weapons.

Credit where credit is due

By J.R. Peed

We need to give credit where credit is due. We need to recognize the excellence and hard work of our local businesses and industries. It is important to celebrate their success and encourage their continued growth.

Speaker challenges Foundation attendees

Erik Hart challenged Panola County Chamber of Commerce President and Panola County Chamber of Commerce Executive Director, David Johnson, to a debate on Monday, November 18th. Hart, a candidate for the 2nd Congressional District, challenged Johnson to a debate on how best to represent the needs and concerns of the Panola County business community.

In a heated debate, Hart and Johnson discussed issues such as infrastructure, education, and economic development. Hart stressed the importance of investing in infrastructure, particularly rural roads and bridges, to improve connectivity and economic opportunities. Johnson, on the other hand, highlighted the Chamber’s efforts to support local businesses and promote economic growth.

The debate ended with a call to action for all Panola County residents to stay informed and involved in the political process. Hart encouraged attendees to register to vote and to participate in the upcoming election.

Advent-observant churches prepare for season

Advent is time of expectancy

In the secular world, the celebration of Advent is as keen as the wait for the arrival of Father Christmas. The excitement at the thought of the Christmas tree, the decorations, the shopping and the cooking all add up to a period of keen expectancy. But Advent is not just a season of waiting. It is a time of reflection, of preparation, of spiritual growth. Advent is the time when the Christian Church prepares for the celebration of Christmas, the birth of Jesus Christ.

For Advent observers, the four weeks leading up to Christmas are a time of quiet reflection, of spiritual growth, of preparation. The Church uses Advent as a time to focus on the themes of joy, hope, love, and peace. The Church uses Advent as a time to reflect on the life and teachings of Jesus Christ, the birth of Jesus Christ, and the joy of the Christmas season.

Candlelight initiation recognizes honor students

By Dave Hensley
During the traditional candlelight initiation ceremony Thursday night, Feb. 8, 1986, new members of the Chi Sigma Chi honor society of the University of Mississippi were inducted.

The ceremony was held in the basketball arena on the campus of the University of Mississippi.

The new members were inducted during a formal ceremony which included the singing of the fraternity's song, the presentation of the new members, and the giving of the candle to each member.

A ceremony was also held to honor the members who had been inducted in previous years.

Banks, thrifts to distribute Salvation Army envelopes

When you get a statement from your local bank or thrift, you probably don't think twice about paying the bill. But if you're a member of the Salvation Army, that bill could mean the difference between a warm winter and a cold one.

The Salvation Army has been distributing envelopes to local banks and thrifts for many years, and it's a great way to help those in need. By simply signing and mailing the envelope, you can be sure that the money will go towards helping those in need.

This year, the Salvation Army is partnering with local banks and thrifts to distribute even more envelopes, so more people can benefit. So the next time you receive a bank statement, consider signing and mailing it to help support the Salvation Army.

New Caregivers' Support Group is announced at AARP luncheon

The new Caregivers' Support Group was announced at the AARP luncheon held at the Community Center on February 8, 1986.

The group was formed to provide support and resources for caregivers of family members with chronic illnesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Almarie Armstrong, the founders of the group, were present at the luncheon to introduce the new organization.

A guest speaker, Dr. James Smith, discussed the importance of caregivers and the challenges they face.

The luncheon was attended by many community members, including members of the AARP, who expressed interest in joining the new group.
