Let's party smartly

Tonight hundreds of people will celebrate the New Year with friends and family in Panola County and beyond. It's a time for fun, but it's also important to remember to party smartly.

Drinking and driving is a dangerous activity, and it can have serious consequences. To make sure you and your loved ones are safe, here are some tips for partying responsibly:

1. Plan ahead: Decide on a sober driver or plan to stay overnight at your destination if you plan on drinking.
2. Designated drivers: Designate one person as the sober driver before the night begins.
3. Mix drinks: Mix drinks and eat food to help reduce the effects of alcohol.
4. Drink slowly: Drink slowly and never exceed the recommended limits for blood alcohol content.
5. Call a taxi or use public transportation if you are drinking.

T-Wheeler starts war in backyard

Washington DC will send a shock wave across Taiwan and the world as it announces the transfer of military weapons to the island nation.

The move is seen as a clear signal that the United States is committed to defending Taiwan against Chinese aggression.

Washington DC has long been interested in providing military aid to Taiwan, but the move has never been as bold as this.

In recent months, tensions between Taiwan and China have escalated, with Beijing threatening to use military force to reunite the two sides.

The move is likely to further escalate tensions in the region, but it is also seen as a way for Washington DC to assert its leadership in the Asia-Pacific.

Daily crude production average down

The daily crude production average in Texas has decreased slightly in recent months, according to the latest data from the Texas Railroad Commission.

The decrease is due to a combination of factors, including lower oil prices and increased costs of production.

The decrease in crude production is a concern for the state's economy, as oil and gas account for a significant portion of the state's GDP.

Local men presented Outstanding Young Men of America awards

The Outstanding Young Men of America awards were presented by the Elks Lodge on October 10 in conjunction with the Elks Club's 66th annual banquet. The awards are given to outstanding young men who have contributed to the community through their service and work. Among the recipients were Charles Brinkley, an electrical engineer from the University of Texas at Austin, and David Smith, a computer scientist from the University of California at Berkeley. The Elks Lodge also honored two local residents, John Johnson, a retired army officer, and Susan Brown, a school teacher. The awardees were presented with plaques and certificates at the banquet.

Old Fashioned Calendar, 730 D.C.

In fact, calendars have been in use for thousands of years. The first known calendar was the Phaistos Disc, which dates back to the mid-2nd millennium BC. It was discovered on Crete and is inscribed with symbols that are still not understood. The Phaistos Disc was the first known attempt to standardize the calendar.

Stegosaurus came up with a thousand-year plan, beginning on January 1, and Daniel was along. However, there was a big problem. Over the centuries, the old calendar had gotten so out of sync with the true passage of time that, by the end of the 2nd century AD, the calendar was off by almost 55 days. Stegosaurus had to find a way to correct this.

The only way Stegosaurus could figure out where the year was going was to give the year 86 B.C. And that’s how the new calendar, the Julian calendar, came into being. The Julian calendar, which was introduced by Julius Caesar in 45 B.C., was the first modern calendar. It was more accurate than the old calendars because it took into account the true passage of time.

By that time, of course, the Egyptians were long gone, and the Julian calendar was the only one in use. The Julian calendar was eventually replaced by the Gregorian calendar, which is still in use today.

The Pope decided something had to be done about springing the calendar, and he called in the astronomers. Just as Julius Caesar had done, they corrected the calendar over a period of 100 years before the new year began. This was the Gregorian calendar, which is now in use worldwide.

And if you want to see a real stick-in-the-mud, you may want to check out the Chinese and Islamic calendars. They are still using the old calendar, which is based on the movement of the moon, on March 1. Of course, this means that the Chinese and Islamic calendars are off by a few days, but it’s all part of the fun.

Happy New Year, and may the new calendar bring you everything you desire.

Wild game, remains challenge to creative cooks

By Dorothy Nadler

"It's on a mission. Turkeys are wild birds. They are not domesticated. They are not confined to a particular area. They are not kept in a cage. They are free to roam and live their lives."

You can make a choice between the wild turkey or domesticated turkey. The wild turkey has more flavor and is more tender. The domesticated turkey is more uniform in weight and size. The wild turkey has a richer, nuttier flavor. The domesticated turkey has a milder, slightly sweet flavor.

Cooking turkey is an art that has been passed down through the years and is still practiced today. The technique of roasting turkey requires careful attention and patience. The bird should be basted frequently with drippings to keep it moist. The bird should be cooked at a low temperature of 200 degrees Fahrenheit for 1 hour per pound of bird.

For a crispy skin, the turkey should be roasted at a higher temperature of 325 degrees Fahrenheit for 45 minutes per pound of bird. The bird should be basted with drippings every 15 minutes to prevent the skin from becoming too dry.

Game Birds

Game birds are among the most flavorful of all wild game. They have characteristics that should be noted and appreciated. Game birds are often hunted for the sport of the hunt, rather than for the meat. They are often caught on a whim, and their habitat is carefully preserved. The following recipe for Quail in Skewer Sauce is from the FOA Cookbook. It is a flavorful dish that is sure to please your guests.

3 quail

1 cup chopped onion

1 cup chopped celery

1 cup diced green pepper

1/2 cup minced garlic

2 tablespoons all-purpose flour

2 cups chicken broth

1 cup dry white wine

1/2 cup chopped parsley

1/4 cup chopped green onions

Salt and pepper to taste

Cook the quail in a large saucepan over medium heat. Add the onion, celery, green pepper, and garlic. Cook until the vegetables are tender. Add the flour, chicken broth, and white wine. Bring to a boil, then reduce the heat and simmer for 30 minutes. Add the parsley and green onions. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Serve hot.

Zoe’s Recipe Box

Zoe shares sister’s Mexican specialties

By ALMOLDA SNYDER

It’s no secret that Mexican cuisine has its roots in the Aztec and Inca empires. The Aztecs were known for their love of chili peppers, which they used extensively in their dishes. The Inca were known for their love of stews and soups, which were often made with potatoes. Today, Mexican cuisine is enjoyed all over the world, and is characterized by a variety of flavors and ingredients.

A popular dish is Mexican bean soup. This soup is made with beans, corn, tomatoes, and spices. It is often served with tortilla chips and guacamole. Another popular dish is enchiladas. These are soft tortillas that are filled with a variety of ingredients, such as shredded chicken, beef, or cheese. They are then baked in a tomato-based sauce and served with melted cheese on top.

A popular dish is mole. Mole is a rich, complex sauce that is often made with chocolate, tomatoes, and a variety of spices. It is often used as a base for many Mexican dishes, such as enchiladas and tacos.

A popular dish is tacos. Tacos are thin tortillas that are filled with a variety of ingredients, such as shredded beef, chicken, or cheese. They are then rolled up and served with a side of salsa and guacamole.
