Century's 'Toughest Session' faces Legislators

AUSTIN—The Texas Legislature, now nearly two-thirds of the way through its regular session, is facing an increasing number of legislative battles that could shape the political landscape for years to come. The top leadership seems to be working from a playbook similar to one used in previous years, but with additional challenges and opportunities.

The Senate today passed an amendment to House Bill 11, which would allow for the expansion of Doleman's Casino. The bill's sponsor, Rep. Steve Toth, R-The Woodlands, said the amendment would bring more jobs to the area and increase revenues for the state. But some critics feared it could lead to more organized crime and gambling addiction.

The House, meantime, continued its debate on HB 2, which would ban the use of unmanned aerial vehicles by law enforcement agencies. The bill has faced criticism from some law enforcement officials who say it would hamper their ability to keep communities safe.

In other news, the Legislative Budget Board released its biennial budget recommendations for the 2023-25 biennium. The board recommended a 4% increase in base state funding for public schools, but warned that future budget cycles could be more challenging due to ongoing economic uncertainty.

House Speaker Dade Phelan, R-Beaumont, said the Republican-controlled legislature was making progress on key issues. But he acknowledged the challenges ahead, including a potential special session if negotiations on certain bills break down.

"We're making good progress, but we know there's still work to be done," Phelan said. "We're going to keep working together to pass legislation that benefits all Texans."

$1.5 million CISD plan proposed

By Bonnie Healy

Legislation to construct a new Carthage Independent School District campus for the elementary grades was introduced at the 80th legislative session in the Texas House on Monday by Rep. James R. "Jim" Burke, D-Seguin. The proposed $1.5 million facility would replace the current system, which consists of three schools: Carter Elementary School, Carthage Elementary School and Carthage Junior High School. The new campus would be located near the current elementary schools, on property owned by the city of Carthage.

The bill, HB 3590, introduced by Burke, would authorize the issuance of a $1.5 million bond for the construction of the new campus. The bond would be issued at a rate of 5 percent per year, and the payments would be made over a period of 20 years. The new campus would accommodate an expected increase in student population, due to growth in the Carthage area.

The bill has been referred to the House Education Committee for consideration.
