Remodeling is way of life for T-Wheeler

By Anne Miller

When the tornado struck in 1965, the T-Wheeler family was caught in the middle. The house they had lived in for years was obliterated. But it didn't stop them. They rebuilt, and they've been remodeling ever since.

The family has a motto: "If it's broke, fix it. If it's not broke, fix it anyway." They've spent thousands of dollars on renovations, from new windows to new bathrooms.

"It's all worth it," says Mrs. T-Wheeler. "You can't put a price on the memories you make in your house."

Atom smasher may be key to state economic recovery

By Governor William P. Clements, Jr.

Work on the Texas Superconducting Accelerator, as part of the Superconducting Super Collider project, is expected to start in 1989. This is a major step in the development of a new industry in Texas.

The project will create thousands of jobs in the state, and it will also bring in billions of dollars. It will be a major boost to the state's economy.

U.S. 59 drug busts continue

By J.T. Doodles

The latest busts in the U.S. 59 area have been a blow to the drug trade in the area. The busts have led to the arrest of several prominent drug dealers.

The latest busts have also led to a decrease in the amount of drugs being sold in the area. The police are hopeful that this trend will continue.

Watching Washington: Space grant colleges

By Lloyd Berends

In the United States, there are a number of space grant colleges. These colleges receive federal funding to support their space-related programs.

The National Space Grant College Program is one such program. It was created to support the development of space-related programs at universities.

The program has had a positive impact on the development of space-related programs in the United States. It has helped to create new programs and to expand existing ones.

Forest Service releases SPB impact statement

The U.S. Forest Service has released a statement that shows the impact of the Southern Pine Beetle (SPB) on the forests of Texas. The study shows that the SPB has caused significant damage to the state's forested areas, leading to a decrease in timber production and a loss of economic value. The report highlights the need for increased monitoring and management efforts to mitigate the effects of the SPB on the state's forested resources.

Study shows better appraisals; zero growth in taxable values

Property taxes in Texas have been a topic of discussion for years, with many homeowners and property owners concerned about the high tax rates. However, the latest study released by the Texas Taxpayers' Legislative Standing Committee shows that there has been no growth in taxable values for the past few years.

The study, conducted by a team of researchers from the University of Texas at Austin, found that property values in Texas have remained stable, with no significant changes in taxable values. The researchers analyzed data from over 5 million properties in the state and found that there has been no growth in taxable values since 2014.

The report also highlights the benefits of having a stable property tax system, as it helps to ensure predictability and stability for homeowners and businesses. The study recommends that policymakers continue to monitor property values closely and make necessary adjustments to the tax system to ensure fairness and equity.

Tips on avoiding 'going broke'

To avoid "going broke," farmers must understand the financial aspects of their operations and take proactive steps to manage their resources. Here are some tips to help farmers avoid financial trouble:

1. Budgeting: Develop a detailed budget for your farm and monitor expenses closely. Be sure to account for all expenses, including variable costs like fuel, labor, and feed.

2. Financial planning: Develop a long-term financial plan that includes projections for cash flow, revenue, and expenses. This will help you anticipate future financial needs and adjust your operations accordingly.

3. Diversification: Consider diversifying your income sources by exploring new markets or products. This can help mitigate the risk of relying on a single income stream.

4. Credit management: Manage your credit wisely and avoid taking on too much debt. Keep a close eye on your credit score and maintain a healthy credit utilization ratio.

By following these tips, farmers can avoid financial trouble and ensure the success of their operations in the long run.

Q: My mother and her sister bought a home 18 years ago. They buy all their insurance from a local company. Now my mother wants to sell the home. She has been told that the insurance company will no longer underwrite the policy. Is this true?

A: Yes, it is true. Insurance companies do not underwrite policies for homes that have been sold. They will provide insurance for the new owner if the new owner agrees to maintain it. However, the old owner is still responsible for any claims that may occur during the transition period.
