Election is important

The campaign leading up to election day by the General Assembly, April 4, has not set any records for excitement. Indeed, some candidates are running unopposed. As long as we have candidates running unopposed, we believe that no election can be considered important.

But that doesn't mean this election is not important. Two seats are up for grabs for the City of Carthage. The other important and political body holds that same level of importance. The选民 hasn't been involved with our political body as much as it should be. Our political body is the one that decides who will be the mayor and who will be the council members.

We have heard comments that the Finch Waller City Council has not had any contact with the community. The three vacant seats on the Board are filled by county officials. We ask you to remember this when voting. Don't let a close contact with the community be a reason for you to vote for any candidates.

Suzie (the dog) holds late night discussion

By Alonzo Miller

Suzie the dog is often seen walking down the street. She's not the only dog around, but she is the only one that walks down the street in social centers. Suzie is a good girl because she walks down the street and she's always looking for treats. She's not afraid to ask for a treat. She usually gets what she wants.

Suzie knows how to handle the crowd of people that gather around her. She's not afraid of the crowd because she's used to them. She's not afraid of the treats because she's used to them.

Fresh Water Supply District No. 1

Red Grady

Board member

I have been on the board for four years and have been active in keeping the lake and pasture land in the district and responsible for the welfare of the community. The board members have worked hard to ensure that the Fresh Water Supply District provides a reliable and sustainable water supply for the residents. Change is needed to address the growing concerns and challenges faced by the community.

Gary Grady

Chairman

I have been with the Fresh Water Supply District for six years and have seen many changes in the community. The current board members have been working hard to ensure that the district provides a reliable and sustainable water supply. Change is needed to address the growing concerns and challenges faced by the community.

Candidates are questioned

Two candidates for the April 4 ballot for area city council seats were asked to respond to a series of questions to help voters make informed decisions.

Carthage

Independents

Lil Keaton, Candidate, Place 4

1. What do you see as the biggest challenge facing Carthage and how will you address it?

2. What qualifications or experiences do you have that will help you lead Carthage and its residents?

3. What changes, if any, would you like to see in the city's government and services?

4. How will you ensure the financial stability and growth of the city?

5. What are your plans for improving community engagement and inclusivity?

Carthage ISD

Randy L. Moncure, Candidate, Place 3

1. What are your priorities for the district's budget and how will you ensure it is sustainable?

2. How will you ensure that all students have access to quality education and resources?

3. What changes, if any, would you like to see in the district's curriculum and programs?

4. How will you address the challenges of providing education for students with special needs?

5. What are your plans for improving community engagement and inclusivity?

Top Bullard by one stroke

Carthage ladies take local golf tournament

BY TED LEACH

Carthage's women's golf team dominated in their meet Monday morning, but it was top player Donna Bullard that truly shone. The senior, who has been a fixture on the Carthage golf team for three years, scorched the course with a low round of 78, including 36 on the front nine and 42 on the back. The score was three strokes better than the second place finisher, who recorded a 81. Bullard's performance was particularly impressive given that the tournament was played in hot and humid conditions. The 78 was the lowest score recorded by any golfer in the tournament, and it helped Carthage to a second place finish. Bullard's victory was particularly significant because it marked her final tournament as a member of the Carthage golf team. Her performance also earned her the title of most valuable player for the tournament. The Carthage golf team was able to capitalize on Bullard's success as they finished second in the tournament. Their score of 336 was four strokes behind the champion, who recorded a 332. The Carthage team was led by Bullard, who was joined by her teammates in a celebration of their success. The coach was particularly pleased with Bullard's performance, saying that she had been working hard to improve her game and that her dedication had paid off. The Carthage golf team will now turn their attention to the upcoming regional tournament, where they hope to continue their winning ways.

Question: I bought an ornate wood-paneled room only to find that the paneling is not historically correct. What can I do? Answer: Consult an expert to determine the authenticity of the paneling and consider re-purposing it for a period-accurate room. Alternatively, consider removing the paneling and replacing it with modern equivalents.
